ADDRESS BY THE GOVERNOR

The Honorable William S. James, Temporary Chairman, introduced Governor Spiro T. Agnew who gave the following address:

I congratulate the people of Maryland for causing this convention to assemble and for sending to it this distinguished and very well qualified delegation.

You are proof of the people's wisdom in the exercise of their franchise . . . and representative of their enlightened awareness that what is to be done here, by you, for them, will become the proud product of Marylanders in this century and the heritage of the next one hundred years.

As authors of the constitution, you are challenged to write for free men the supreme law . . . and to find in the fewest words the fullest expression of free government. In a sense you are like those who created the Mayflower Compact out of their imaginations . . . or the Fundamental Orders of Connecticut out of their common sense . . . or the Articles of Confederation out of a compulsion for sudden independence . . . or the Constitution of the United States from the overpowering logic that thirteen separate sovereignties could not long endure untied to each other.

Supreme Court Justice Hugo Black described the Constitution as "the basic charter of our government written in few words to define governmental powers generally on the one hand and to define governmental limitations on the other." Associate Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes viewed the Constitution as "an experiment," while Chief Justice John Marshall revered the Constitution as "a design to approach immortality as nearly as human institutions can approach it."

Whichever concept, interpretation or definition you choose or reject, the worth of your work will be judged by history and tested by time.

You are the forefathers of the future, and while you may be privileged now to look ahead, you will not be privileged to look back once you have sealed the document and given it to the people for their approbation.

So look back now while you still may, for there is something to be learned and much to be remembered. Survey our national heritage for precedent that serves and tradition that inspires.

Remember the special genius of America for writing constitutions and calling its ablest delegates to convention for that purpose.

Remember the miracle at Philadelphia where independence gave birth to statesmanship, and where thirteen states united to create one nation and one people under one constitution.

Remember the spirit of that historic confrontation where political passion surrendered to logic and compromise.

Remember the doubts and fears of the men who wrote it . . . doubtful that their work was perfect enough and fearful that it might not long endure.

And yet our national constitution has endured. For it was limited to an expression of great principles; founded upon the faith and confidence that the righteousness of these principles would suffice to provide security and direction for all future generations.

It is the most eloquently simple statement of principle ever inspired to direct a government and protect a people. Its relevance persevered through the recognition that, while institutions will change, great principles will endure.

The Constitution written for America one hundred and eighty years ago comes to us today unspoiled . . . yet the constitution written for Maryland eighty years later must now be edited anew. Like those immortalized federalists who wrote the law of the nation, those who framed the constitutions for states were determined to rise above prejudice and write true to principle. But perhaps they rose too little and wrote too much.

Yet, we must not be too harsh with our State's constitutional forebears. We must understand that in 1867 Maryland had not yet recovered from the agonizing impact of the Civil War . . . that the wounds of conflict ran deep . . . that the memories of past political abuses were still vivid. We must remember too that in that early year Maryland was a rural, gentle and complacent State with but a single small commercial center, and barely over a half million residents . . . a people who sought little from their state government but to restore the peace and permit them to recover in peace from the exhausting war.

They could not foresee the Maryland of today with its population seven times the number for which the Constitution of 1867 was framed . . . with its urban concentration embracing seventy-three percent of our citizens . . . a Maryland where the profound barriers of transportation and communication would no longer be obstacles to people and progress.

If the transition between clipper ships and jet propelled aircraft seems phenomenal . . . even more startling is the very speed of incessant change. Our commercial, industrial and population growth has not been gradual but explosive. And its impact on government has been no less dramatic.

The inability of the old constitution to envisage growth and change is indicated by the more than two hundred amendments which have been grafted to the original document. Even the fundamental construction was beset with flaws, not apparent when state government was small, but obstructive now that it has grown to impressive height. So distrustful were our predecessors of political authority that they created checks and balances not only between the three traditional branches of government but within them . . . not merely hindering administrative action but virtually strangling the implementation of bold solutions.

Thus we have become a static state drifting from a state of indifference to a state of emergency. Maryland is not alone in this. Other states, perhaps even the majority of them, have suffered the same breakdown of their political nervous systems. The Federal Government, forced to fill the vacuum created by the strangled state, has grown out of all proportion to its constitutional purposes. In turn, the cherished constitutional balance between federal and state governments has been disrupted, and unless we act quickly and responsibly, it could be permanently destroyed.

State government has a special role as the sovereign government closest to the people. It is immediate and intimate. It is the laboratory for political experiment, the instrument to test and apply new political solutions to new and old problems. State government, tempered by its unique constitutional safeguard of referendum, may yet become the most creative, imaginative and dynamic form of political expression.

In little more than three decades we will enter the twenty-first century. By the year 2000 we will be six million citizens. Traditional political boundaries will be obscured by one vast metropolitan corridor between Baltimore and Washington. Rapid rail and air transportation will be commonplace. The atmosphere we breathe will be cleaner, our water will be purer, and our people will be more educated and enlightened. It is not for today, but for tomorrow, that you write this constitution . . . the sinew, soul and spirit of the Maryland to be.

As you reflect on this singular task, know that you write for not one isolated or estranged people but for a Maryland which is itself the very microcosm of America. In the geography of our State, the geography of our nation is cast in miniature. In the thoughts of our citizens the great philosophical cross-currents from north and south, east and west, city and suburb meet . . . mix . . . and merge.

Maryland reflects the diversity that gave to America its greatness. We are many people. We are many races, religions and national origins. We are a tidewater people and a mountain people. We are a people born to rich farmlands and a people reared in the teeming tempo of city streets. We are different kinds of people, each individual and unique, but united, in our common love of freedom, our common respect for human liberty, our common passion for law and order, and our common faith in the future. A constitution for the State of Maryland is in every respect a constitution for each of the states united.

So now begin the great work knowing that what you attempt has been tried before and that what you will accomplish must serve as law and letter to a society yet to come. Let principle be chapter and verse of the new constitution and let brevity attest to the clarity of its pronouncement.

Let every political passion be expressed, but let logic, compromise and principle prevail.

Let remembrance of the past give direction, let understanding of the present provide confidence, and let vision of the future offer inspiration.

Lay shoulder to the great points, knowing as did Thomas Jefferson, that the little ones will follow.

Let the wisdom of our nation's enduring Constitution be your example.

And let these Biblical proverbs be your creed:

"Behold, a good doctrine has been given unto you; forsake it not.

It is a tree of life to them that hold fast to it, and its supporters are happy.

Its ways are ways of pleasantness and all its paths are peace."

REPORT OF TEMPORARY COMMITTEE ON RULES

Delegate Scanlan, Chairman, Temporary Committee on Rules, recommended the standing rules of the Constitutional Convention adopted by that committee July 7, 1967.

CHAPTER I GENERAL PROVISIONS

Rule 1. Quorum and Majority. A majority of all the delegates to the Convention shall constitute a quorum for the transaction of business, but a smaller number may adjourn the Convention from day to day and may also compel the attendance of absent delegates by the means approved by a majority, but not less than fifteen, of the delegates present. A majority of all the delegates may prescribe penalties for the non-attendance of delegates.

When a quorum is obtained, the affirmative vote of a majority of the delegates present and voting shall be sufficient for the adoption of any motion or resolution or the taking of any action, except in those cases where the affirmative vote of a greater number shall be required either by these rules or by Section 10 or Section 13 of Chapter 4 of the Acts of the General Assembly of 1967.

Rule 2. Admission to Floor—Defined. No person, other than a delegate, officer or employee of the Convention, accredited news correspondent or person invited by the president, shall be admitted on the floor of the Convention immediately preceding the time set for any call to order and immediately following adjournment. Only delegates, officers and employees and such other persons as may be authorized by the president shall be admitted to the floor of the Convention during the session. The phrase "floor of the Convention" means the room or chamber where the Convention sits in session, excluding the space designated for visitors and for the press.

CHAPTER II OFFICERS AND EMPLOYEES

Rule 3. Officers of the Convention. The officers of the Convention shall be an honorary president, a president, a first vice-president, and a second vice-president, all of whom shall be elected by the Convention by the vote of a majority of all the delegates, by roll call vote. There shall also be a secretary, a chief clerk, a sergeant at arms, a parliamentarian, a historian, and such other officers as may be necessary from time to time, all of whom shall be selected in such manner as may be determined by resolution of the Convention adopted by a majority of all the delegates. The honorary president, president and vice-presidents shall be delegates and shall receive no additional compensation for services performed as officers. All officers and employees of the Convention, other than the honorary president, the president and the vice-presidents, shall be persons who are not delegates and their compensation shall be fixed in such manner as may be determined by resolution of the Convention.

THE PRESIDENT

Rule 4. Duties of the Presiding Officer. The president shall preside at sessions of the Convention and of the Committee of the Whole, and exercise the usual powers and perform the usual duties of a presiding officer. He shall preserve order and decorum and fairly assign floor rights. He may speak to points of order and, subject to an appeal to the Convention or to the Committee of the Whole, shall decide points of order.

Rule 5. Appointment by the President. The president, after consultation with the vice-presidents, shall appoint a chairman and the members of all committees. All appointments shall be announced to the Convention and entered upon the Journal. Each committee shall elect one of its members to be the vice-chairman. The vice-chairman shall perform all the duties and functions of the chairman in the absence of the chairman.

Rule 6. Administration of Convention. Except as otherwise provided the president shall appoint, and assign duties to, all employees of the Convention. The president, with the consent of the chairman of each standing committee, shall appoint the staff of such committee.

Rule 7. Authority of President. The president shall be chief executive of the Convention and all other officers and employees shall be responsible to his general supervision.

Rule 8. Naming of the President Pro Tem. The president may appoint any delegate to preside temporarily at any session of the Convention or of the Committee of the Whole, but not for longer than one day at a time without leave of the Convention.

Rule 9. Voting. The president may vote in all elections, on all divisions called for by any delegate, and on all questions taken by ayes and nays, except that the president may not vote twice, once to cause a tie vote then again to break it.

Rule 10. Powers and Duties. If the president is temporarily absent or temporarily unable to preside, the first vice-president, or in the absence or inability of the first vice-president to preside, the second vice-president, shall exercise the powers and perform the duties of the president and shall preside over the Convention or the Committee of the Whole, unless the president shall have designated another delegate as president pro tem for that session or that day. If a vacancy occurs in the office of president, the first vice-president shall temporarily exercise the powers of the office of president until the Convention elects a president to fill the office. If a vacancy occurs in the office of the first vice-president, the second vice-president shall succeed thereto. The Convention shall fill any vacancy in the office of second vice-president.

SECRETARY

Rule 11. Responsibilities of the Secretary. The secretary shall be the chief administrative officer of the Convention and shall be primarily responsible for its administration, under the direct authority of the president. The secretary, under the supervision and authority of the president, shall be responsible for the employment and assignment of personnel, the supervision of payroll, the registration of lobbyists or any special interest groups pursuant to any requirements imposed by rule or resolution of the Convention, and communications with the press. He shall be director of the Convention's budget and shall supervise the acquisition and care of facilities, services and supplies needed by the Convention.

The secretary, with the president, shall certify to the secretary of state the proposals for a new constitution and the form thereof as approved by the Convention for submission to the electorate on May 14, 1968, in accordance with Section 15 of Chapter 4 of the Acts of the General Assembly of 1967.

CHIEF CLERK

Rule 12. Roll Call. The chief clerk shall call the roll at the opening of each session of the Convention and the president shall announce whether or not a quorum is present.

Rule 13. Journal and Transcript. The chief clerk shall furnish to each delegate a copy of the journal of the proceedings of the Convention for the previous day which, when approved by the Convention, shall be the official journal of the Convention. The chief clerk shall also keep a verbatim record of the proceedings of sessions of the Convention and meetings of the Committee of the Whole.

Rule 14. Order of Business. The chief clerk shall furnish to each delegate the daily calendar and agenda of the business of each session of the Convention provided for by Rule 57 and a copy of each proposal as soon as practicable.

SERGEANT AT ARMS

Rule 15. Powers and Duties. The sergeant at arms shall be the chief police officer of the Convention.

PARLIAMENTARIAN

Rule 16. Duties. The parliamentarian shall be advisor and counsel to the presiding officer on all matters of parliamentary procedure; however, all parliamentary rulings shall be the responsibility of, and shall be made by, the presiding officer.

HISTORIAN

Rule 17. Duties. The historian shall be responsible for collecting, compiling, documenting and preserving all proceedings of the Convention and its several committees. He shall also oversee the publication of any of the historical records and documents of the Convention.

CHAPTER III DELEGATES

Rule 18. Conduct in Debate. When any delegate is about to speak in debate or to present any matter to the Convention, he shall rise from his seat, and address himself to "Mr. President"; he shall not speak until recognized and when recognized he shall confine himself to the question under consideration and avoid personalities.

Rule 19. Delegates Called to Order. The president or any delegate may challenge any other delegate who, on speaking, violates the rules of the Convention. Upon such challenge, the president may order the speaker to sit down. The president's order to sit down, or the failure of the president to order the speaker to sit down, may be appealed.

Rule 20. Times Delegates May Speak. Except as provided by Rule 36, no delegate may speak more than once on the same question without leave of a majority of those present and voting, unless he be the mover of the matter pending or chairman of the committee that reported it, in which case he shall be privileged to speak twice.

Rule 21. Seating. The seats of the delegates on the Convention floor shall be arranged in alphabetical order by surnames. If a vacancy occurs the person selected to fill the vacancy shall continue to have the seat of the delegate who vacated the position.

CHAPTER IV COMMITTEES

Rule 22. Establishment and Meetings. The standing committees of the Convention shall be:

1. Committee on Personal Rights and the Preamble
2. Committee on Suffrage and Elections
3. Committee on the Legislative Branch
4. Committee on the Executive Branch
5. Committee on the Judicial Branch
6. Committee on Local Government
7. Committee on State Finance and Taxation
8. Committee on General Provisions
9. Committee on Style, Drafting and Arrangement
10. Committee on Calendar and Agenda of the Convention
11. Committee on Rules, Credentials and Convention Budget

Committees 1 through 8 shall be considered substantive committees and each delegate shall be entitled to serve on one of these eight committees.

Each committee shall meet at the call of its chairman or by the written request of a majority of its members.

A recorded roll call vote on any matter before a committee shall be taken on demand of any member of the committee.

Each committee shall maintain an action journal of all its proceedings and a calendar, both of which shall be available to the delegates, news media and interested members of the public.

Additional committees may be established by resolution of the Convention.

Rule 23. Vacancies. In case of a vacancy or the prolonged absence of the chairman and vice-chairman, the president of the Convention shall appoint a chairman to act until the chairman or vice-chairman shall return.

Rule 24. Sitting of Committees during Sessions of the Convention. No committee, except the Committee on Calendar and Agenda of the Convention, shall sit during the sessions of the Convention or of the Committee of the Whole, without having first obtained special leave of the president, or of the Convention by the affirmative vote of a majority of those present and voting.

Rule 25. Power to Incur Expenses. No delegate or committee shall incur any expense chargeable to the Convention unless such expense is approved by the president or is authorized by resolution of the Convention. No motion or resolution calling for an expenditure of money shall be acted upon by the Convention without first being referred to an appropriate committee for consideration and recommendation.

Rule 26. Subcommittees. A committee, by the affirmative vote of a majority of its members, may provide for the appointment by the committee chairman of subcommittees composed of delegates who are members of the committee. Reports of subcommittees shall be considered by the entire committee before the committee recommends any action thereon by the Convention.

Rule 27. Notice of Reports. A committee shall notify all delegates who have introduced proposals on the same subject matter of the time and place where they may meet with the committee to explain such proposals, and the notice required by this rule shall be given at least twenty-four hours before the committee takes final action.

Rule 28. Report of Committees. The affirmative vote of a majority of the members of a committee shall be necessary to report a proposal out of committee. The report of a minority of at least twenty per cent of the members of any committee shall be received, printed in the same manner as the majority report, and treated as an amendment or substitute offered to or for the report of the committee if offered as such on the floor. All proposals reported by a committee to the Convention shall be referred to the Committee of the Whole.

Rule 29. Committee Meetings and Hearings. Committees may hold meetings or public hearings at the seat of the Convention and may be authorized by the Convention to hold meetings or public hearings at any other place. A committee may grant the powers here authorized to any subcommittee. A committee, with the approval of the president, may direct that a verbatim record be kept of any portion of its proceedings.

Rule 30. Consideration of Proposals without Committee Recommendations. After one session day's notice a committee, on motion passed by the affirmative vote of a majority of all the delegates, may be required to report, with or without a recommendation, any proposal referred to the committee.

CHAPTER V COMMITTEE OF THE WHOLE

Rule 31. General Orders of the Day. All proposals reported by any committee of the Convention shall be referred to the Committee of the Whole and kept in the file called "General Orders of the Day". No committee proposal shall be considered by the Committee of the Whole until the third day after it has been referred to the Committee of the Whole, unless the Convention, by the affirmative vote of a majority of the delegates present and voting, agrees to its earlier consideration.

Rule 32. Consideration of Proposals. When the Convention reaches consideration of the General Orders of the Day, it shall then sit as the Committee of the Whole to consider such orders, or to consider a particular order designated by the Convention by the affirmative vote of a majority of those present and voting. Unless a particular proposal has been specially designated by the Convention for consideration out of turn, the Committee of the Whole shall consider, act upon, or pass over the General Orders of the Day in the order in which they were referred to the Committee.

Rule 33. Amendment. All amendments to proposals or recommendations shall be entered on separate paper and stated to the delegates by the presiding officer.

Rule 34. Motion that Committee of the Whole rise. A motion that the Committee of the Whole rise shall always be in order unless a member of the Committee is speaking or a vote is being taken, and such motion shall be decided without debate by the vote of a majority of those present and voting.

Rule 35. Reconsideration. A motion to reconsider shall be in order in the Committee of the Whole and may be adopted before the Committee rises by the affirmative vote of a majority of those present and voting.

Rule 36. Application of Convention Rules. The rules of the Convention shall be observed in the Committee of the Whole so far as they may be applicable except that the Committee of the Whole cannot adjourn the Convention; the previous question shall not be ordered; the vote of a majority of the Committee shall govern its action; the Committee cannot refer matters to any other committee; and a motion to postpone indefinitely or for a Call of the Convention shall not be in order. A delegate may speak more than once in the Committee of the Whole. A quorum in the Committee of the Whole shall be 72.

Rule 37. Limitation of Debate. [Rule to be drafted and recommended September 12 concerning limitation of debate.]

CHAPTER VI TRANSACTION OF BUSINESS

Rule 38. Order of Business. The order of business of the Convention shall be as follows:

1. Call to order and preliminary matters.
2. Invocation.
3. Roll call.
4. Report of Committee on Calendar and Agenda.
5. Reports of other standing committees.
6. Reports of select committees.
7. Communications from state officers.
8. Introduction and first reading and reference of proposals.
9. Second and final reading of proposals.
10. Motions and resolutions.
11. Unfinished business.
12. Special orders of the day.
13. General orders of the day.

PETITIONS

Rule 39. Printing in Journal. No memorial, remonstrance, or petition shall be read or printed in full in the Journal unless ordered read or printed by the affirmative vote of a majority of those present and voting.

MOTIONS AND RESOLUTIONS

Rule 40. Stating Motions. When a motion is made, it shall be stated to the Convention by the president; or, if in writing, it shall be handed to the chief clerk and read aloud to the Convention before being debated.

Every resolution, other than a proposal, shall be submitted in quintuplicate, shall be read by title, and shall be referred to the appropriate committee. If the rules are suspended to permit immediate consideration of a resolution, the resolution shall be read in full to the Convention before it is considered.

Rule 41. Reduced to Writing. Every motion shall be reduced to writing if the president or any delegate shall request it, and shall be entered upon the Journal, together with the name of the delegate making it, unless the motion is withdrawn by the maker or is ruled out of order by the president.

Rule 42. Withdrawal of Motions. After a motion has been stated by the president or read by the chief clerk it shall be deemed to be in the possession of the Convention, but it may be withdrawn by the maker at any time before being amended or put to vote.

Rule 43. Privileged Motions. When a question is under debate, no motion shall be received but—

1. To amend the calendar and agenda.
2. To fix the time to which to adjourn.
3. To adjourn.
4. To take a recess.
5. To reconsider.
6. To call for the Orders of the Day.
7. To lay on the table.
8. For a Call of the Convention.
9. To limit debate.
10. To move the previous question.
11. To postpone to a day certain.
12. To postpone indefinitely.
13. To commit.
14. To amend.

The motions listed in this rule shall take precedence in the order in which they stand arranged. All of them shall be decided by the vote of a majority of those present and voting, except that any motion to postpone indefinitely shall be decided by the affirmative vote of a majority of all the delegates to the convention. When a recess is taken while a question is pending, consideration of such question shall be resumed when the Convention reassembles, unless it determines otherwise. No motion to postpone to a day certain, or to commit, having been decided by the Convention, shall again be in order on the same day or at the same stage of the question. Whenever a proposal is being considered and a motion is then made, either to postpone indefinitely or to commit, amendments to the pending proposal shall first be in order before any vote is taken on any such motion.

Rule 44. Motions not Debatable. A motion to adjourn shall always be in order except when a motion to fix the time to which to adjourn, or a motion to amend the calendar and agenda, is pending. A motion to adjourn, a motion to lay on the table, a motion for a recess pending the consideration of other business and all matters relating to questions of order, shall be decided without debate.

Rule 45. Order of Putting Questions. All questions shall be put in the order in which they are moved, except in the case of privileged motions.

Rule 46. Amendment Must be Germane. No motion or proposition relating to a subject different from that under consideration shall be admitted under color of an amendment or substitute.

Rule 47. Division of Question. Any delegate may call for a division of the question, which shall be divided if it includes propositions which are so distinct in substance that when one is removed or deferred, a substantive proposition remains for the decision of the Convention. A motion to strike out and insert shall not be subject to division within the meaning of this rule.

MOTION CALLING FOR THE PREVIOUS QUESTION

Rule 48. Method of Ordering. The method of ordering the previous question shall be as follows: Any delegate may move the previous question and, unless otherwise stated, the motion shall apply to the pending question only. The presiding officer shall put the question, "Shall the main question now be put?" This shall be ordered only by a majority of the delegates present and voting. After the seconding of a motion for the previous question and prior to the ordering of the same, a Call of the Convention may be moved and ordered, but after ordering the previous question nothing shall be in order prior to the decision of the pending question or questions, except demands for the ayes and nays, points of order, appeals from the decision of the Chair, and a motion to adjourn or to take a recess, all of which shall be decided without debate. The effect of ordering the previous question shall be to put an end to all debate and bring the Convention to a direct vote upon the pending question or questions in their order down to and including the main question; provided, however, that when the previous question shall be ordered, amendments then on the chief clerk's desk shall be acted upon. When a motion to reconsider has been taken under the previous question and decided in the affirmative, the fact that the previous question had been ordered shall have no operation or effect with respect to the question for which reconsideration has been ordered. If the Convention refuses to order the previous question, it shall resume consideration of the pending subject as though no motion for the previous question had been made.

Rule 49. Sine Die Adjournment. A motion to adjourn the Convention sine die shall not be voted upon until at least forty-eight hours after notice is given to the delegates; and to pass this motion requires an affirmative vote of a majority of all the delegates to the Convention.

Rule 50. Motion for Reconsideration. Any delegate may move for a reconsideration of any question at the same or next succeeding session of the Convention, or the Committee on Style, Drafting and Arrangement may move for reconsideration on any subsequent day if one session day's notice of its intention to do so is given in writing to the chief clerk and entered upon the Journal. A motion to reconsider shall take precedence over all other questions, except a motion to amend the calendar and agenda, a motion to fix the time to which to adjourn, a motion to adjourn and a motion to recess. A motion to reconsider shall not be renewed except by the Committee on Style, Drafting and Arrangement.

MOTION FOR CALLS OF THE CONVENTION

Rule 51. Quorum Calls. A Call of the Convention may be ordered if there is an absence of a quorum.

Rule 52. Procedure. The roll of the Convention shall be called by the chief clerk and the absentees noted. The sergeant at arms may, upon motion, be dispatched after the absentees. In such case, a list of the absentees shall be furnished by the chief clerk to the sergeant at arms, who shall bring such absentees to the floor of the Convention with all possible speed. In case the sergeant at arms shall require assistance in addition to the regularly appointed assistant sergeant at arms of the Convention, the president, upon motion, may deputize as a special assistant sergeant at arms any person properly qualified. The Convention may proceed to business under a Call of the Convention pending the arrival of any absentees.

PROPOSALS AND RECOMMENDATIONS

Rule 53. Introduction. Any suggestion, proposition or draft intended to become a part of any revised constitution, or amendment thereto or schedule to be attached thereto shall be called a delegate proposal or a committee recommendation. A proposal introduced by a delegate shall be designated a delegate proposal and a proposal submitted by a committee shall be designated a committee recommendation. A delegate proposal shall be endorsed by the delegate or delegates introducing it and a committee recommendation shall be endorsed by the chairman of the committee submitting it. Five copies of every delegate proposal or committee recommendation shall be delivered to the chief clerk who shall cause the same to be suitably numbered, printed and distributed to delegates as promptly as possible.

Rule 54. Order of Consideration. The prescribed order in which proposals introduced in the Convention are to be taken up or acted upon shall be as follows:

1. Introduction, first reading by title, reference to a committee by the president, and ordered printed and distributed unless otherwise ordered by a majority of the delegates present.
2. Report of the committee and placing on the General Orders.
3. Consideration by the Committee of the Whole in order of their reference.
4. Report by the Committee of the Whole and reference to the Committee on Drafting, Style and Arrangement.
5. Report of the Committee on Drafting, Style and Arrangement.
6. Second reading, final passage of each proposal.
7. Re-reference to the Committee on Drafting, Style and Arrangement for incorporation in final draft.
8. Report by the Committee on Drafting, Style and Arrangement of any complete revision of or proposed amendment to, the Constitution.
9. Third reading and final passage of any complete revision of, or proposed amendment to, the Constitution.

Rule 55. Majority Vote on Proposals. On the final passage of every proposal, section, article and of any complete revision of or amendment to the Constitution, the vote shall be taken by ayes and nays and entered on the Journal and no proposal, section, article, or any such amendment or complete revision, shall be declared finally passed unless a majority of all the delegates to the Convention shall have voted in favor of the passage of the same.

Rule 56. Calendar. The Committee on Calendar and Agenda of the Convention shall prepare a calendar and order of business for each session of the Convention. The calendar shall be furnished to the chief clerk, who shall distribute it to the delegates before the time set for the next session of the Convention. The Convention, at any time or from time to time during a session, may, by the affirmative vote of a majority of those present and voting, adopt, reject, or modify the daily calendar and agenda presented to it.

SPECIAL ORDERS

Rule 57. Unfinished Special Orders. Any subject matter which has been made a special order for a particular day, but which is not reached on that day, shall then come up for consideration under the order of "Unfinished Business" at the next succeeding session of the Convention.

CHAPTER VII MISCELLANEOUS READING AND ENDORSEMENT OF PAPERS

Rule 58. Reading. When the reading of a paper, including the Journal, is called for and an objection is raised to such reading, the Convention by a majority vote of delegates present and voting shall determine without debate whether or not the paper shall be read.

Rule 59. Presentation and Endorsement of Petitions. Petitions received by an officer of the Convention or by any delegate may be initialed by the recipient, and handed directly to the chairman or clerk of the committee which has the subject matter of the petition under consideration. The chairman of the committee, on behalf of the Convention, shall give appropriate notice of the receipt of the petition.

Rule 60. Calls of Convention—Ayes and Nays. Upon Calls of the Convention, and in taking the ayes and nays upon any question, the names of the delegates shall be called alphabetically.

Rule 61. Putting the Question. The president shall put all questions substantially in this form: "As many as are in favor of (as the question may be) say 'aye'"; and after the affirmative vote is expressed,

"as many as are opposed say 'no'." If the president is in doubt as to the vote, he may order a roll call vote of the Convention.

A roll call vote of the Convention may be had upon the demand of ten delegates.

Rule 62. Recognition during Roll Call. After a question has been stated by the president, and the call of the roll has been started by the chief clerk, the president shall not recognize a delegate for any purpose except upon points of order, until after the announcement of the vote by the chief clerk. The chief clerk shall enter upon the Journal the names of those voting "aye" and the names of those voting "no".

Rule 63. Roll Call. At the roll call to be taken at the opening of each session and upon Calls of the Convention, the names of the members shall be called by the chief clerk, and the absentees noted.

Rule 64. Amendment or Suspension of Rules. These rules may be amended by the affirmative vote of a majority of all the delegates to the Convention after the proposed amendment has been submitted in writing, has been considered by the Committee on Rules, Credentials and Convention Budget, and has been in the possession of the delegates not less than two session days prior to its consideration. A rule may be suspended by the affirmative vote of a majority of all the delegates to the Convention.

APPEALS

Rule 65. Form of Question. On all appeals from decisions of the Chair, the question shall be "Shall the appeal be sustained?" A favorable vote of a majority of the delegates present and voting shall sustain the appeal. The presiding officer may cast his vote on an appeal from his decision, and he shall have the right to explain his decision.

Rule 66. Tabling Appeals. An appeal may be laid on the table but shall not, as a consequence, thereby either remove or carry with it the subject matter pending before the Convention at the time the appeal was taken.

Rule 67. Practice. In all cases not covered by these rules, or by any subsequent amendments to them, the controlling parliamentary authority shall be Robert's Rules of Order Revised (1951 Edition).

METHOD OF VOTING

Rule 68. Voting by the Electrical Roll Call System. When taking the ayes and nays on any question to be voted upon, the electrical roll call system may be used, and when so used shall have the same force and effect as a roll call taken as otherwise provided in these rules.

When the Convention is ready to vote upon any question requiring a roll call, and the vote is to be taken by the electrical roll call system, the presiding officer shall announce: "The question is on the passage of (designating the matter to be voted upon). All in favor of such question shall vote 'aye', all opposed shall vote 'nay'. The Convention will now proceed to vote".

After affording the delegates sufficient time in which to vote, the presiding officer shall announce: "Have all voted?" and after a short pause he shall then say: "Does any delegate desire to change his vote?" and after another short pause he shall say: "The chief clerk shall proceed to record the vote."

The chief clerk shall immediately start the vote recording equipment, and when completely recorded, the president shall announce the result to the Convention. The chief clerk shall enter upon the Journal the result in the manner provided by the rules of the Convention.

Any delegate shall be privileged to vote or change his vote after the vote recording equipment has started to operate, and prior to the time the chief clerk has recorded the vote.

No delegate shall vote for another delegate nor shall any person not a delegate cast a vote for any delegate. Any delegate who shall vote or attempt to vote for another delegate may be punished in such manner as the Convention may determine. If a person not a delegate shall vote or attempt to vote for any delegate, he shall be barred from the floor of the Convention for the remainder of the session and may be further punished in such manner as the Convention may determine proper.

CHAPTER VIII

LOBBYISTS

Rule 69. Registration and Regulation.

The Convention, by resolution adopted by a majority of all the delegates, shall have authority to issue rules or regulations with respect to the registration and appearance before it, or before any of its authorized committees or subcommittees, of any person engaged or hired, for a fee, salary or other compensation, to promote, advocate, influence or oppose any matter pending before the Convention, or which might come before it or any of its committees or subcommittees. Such rules and regulations may include requirements that such persons shall register with the secretary and file such report of expenditures as may be required by such rules and regulations.

AMENDMENTS TO THE STANDING RULES

Amendment No. 1—By Delegate Weidemeyer, duly seconded.

On page 2 of the mimeographed proposed rules at Rule No. 3 and in lines 3, 4, and 5 thereof, strike out the following: "all of whom shall be elected by the Convention by the vote of a majority of all the delegates, by a roll call vote"; and following the last line of Rule 3 thereof, insert the following new Rule:

3A. Election of Officers.

(a) In the election for the President of the Convention, delegates may make nominating speeches placing names before the Convention for consideration. A secret written ballot of delegates to the Convention then shall be held, and each delegate shall write in at least four and not more than five names on his ballot. Delegates, while casting ballots, may vote for names other than those actually placed before the Convention. In the tally of votes on this secret ballot, the six highest names become the nominees for President of the Convention. Delegates then shall cast another secret written ballot voting for one of these six nominees. [If one of the nominees does not receive a majority vote of all the delegates elected to the Convention, the delegate with the lowest vote shall be removed from the list and the same procedure followed until a President is elected. (Deleted before rejection.)]

(b) After the election of a President to the Convention, the same procedure shall be followed separately for the election of the honorary president, the first vice-president and the second vice-president."

Which amendment was read and rejected by voice vote.

Amendment No. 2—By Delegates Clark, Fornos, Hostetter, Koss, Pascal, and Ulrich; duly seconded.

On page 1 of the mimeographed proposed rules, in Rule No. 1, and following the second paragraph insert the following new paragraph:

"All sessions of this Convention and all meetings of its Committees shall be open to the public at all times, and no rules shall be promulgated which in any way infringe upon the public's right to information about this Convention."

Which amendment was read and adopted by voice vote.

Amendment No. 3—By Delegate Willoner, duly seconded.

On page 3 of the mimeographed proposed rules and in Rule No. 5, strike out all of lines 1-7, inclusive, and insert in lieu thereof the following:

"Rule 5. Appointment by the President and Vice Presidents. The President, with the two Vice-Presidents, shall appoint the chairman and members of all standing committees. A majority of these officers shall determine each appointment. All appointments shall be announced to the Convention and entered upon the Journal. Each committee shall elect one of its members to be the vice-chairman. The vice-chairman shall perform all the duties and functions of the chairman in the absence of the chairman."

Which amendment was read and rejected by yeas and nays as follows:

Delegates James and Clark were appointed to escort the President to the Chair. The oath of office of president was administered to the President-elect by the Honorable William S. James, Temporary Chairman. The President made a short address upon taking the Chair.

ADDRESS OF THE PRESIDENT

PRESIDENT ENEY: Thank you very much. It is hard to be humble when you have so many good friends who say so many nice things about you. But I assure you that as I stand here this afternoon, before this assembly of delegates and honored guests, I feel indeed very, very humble. I do not intend to make a speech to you this afternoon but I think I would be remiss in my duty if I did not take the opportunity to say a few things that are on my mind.

Two years ago this month when the Constitutional Convention Commission had its first meeting, I told the delegates that I thought we ought to approach the task before us with a sense of history. I said this not with any notion of inflating our own importance, but on the contrary, of making us feel as humble as possible in the realization that the task confronting us was a formidable one which would demand of us every ounce of our energy and our abilities, our honesty, integrity and judgment.

It is even more true today. I suggest to you delegates that we should indeed approach the task before the Constitutional Convention of Maryland of 1967 with a real sense of history, with a proud realization of the great place of our State in the history of this nation, and a determination that it shall be in the forefront leading us back to a position where we are a great nation of sovereign free states.

One hundred years ago yesterday, the Constitutional Convention of 1867 resumed its session after a ten-day recess for the final seven weeks of its session which produced the Constitution which with numerous amendments has regulated our State ever since.

After we conclude business at this organization session, we shall recess for a long period but only in order to prepare for the race which will begin on September 12, 1967.

I say race advisedly because I feel very deeply that this Convention will be a race against time in a sense but more particularly a race against delay.

We have allotted to us three months to complete a tremendous task. I have said many times, and I am quite sure as I stand on this rostrum this afternoon, that this Convention can complete the task in three months without the necessity of falling back on that extra 30-day cushion. We can do it if we plan adequately in the next 60 days during the summer recess of this Convention, if every delegate makes up his or her mind to put his or her shoulder to the wheel, to push as hard as possible, to get the business done, to be fair in debate, fair in consideration of the views of the delegates who may be opposed to our particular philosophies, willing to approach the solution of every problem with an open mindedness and an ability and willingness to accede to some extent at least to the other fellow's views, so that we can finally conclude the Convention with a constitution for the State of Maryland about which there can be no doubt, and concerning the adoption of which by the people of Maryland there can be no doubt.

In order to accomplish this purpose, it will be my aim to appoint as chairman of the various committees and as members of the various committees those persons who seem to be best qualified for the task at hand.

It is my intention to communicate with every delegate and ask him to express to me and to the Vice-Presidents his background, his particular skills, abilities, his preferences, his desires as to committee assignments. I hope to be able to arrange, if it is humanly possible, a personal meeting with every delegate and myself and the two Vice-Presidents so that we can explore further the problems of appointing chairmen of committees.

I think the task confronting this Convention is twofold: The task of drafting a satisfactory document, one to which we can all subscribe, and the task of doing it within the time allotted to us. I have not the slightest doubt in my mind that this Convention can accomplish the first task. The citizens of the State of Maryland have sent to this Convention men and women of outstanding ability, experience, training, and capabilities. I think they can certainly prepare a document which can endure as a constitution of the State of Maryland for the next hundred years. But unless we school ourselves to accomplish this and complete it within the first three months, we fall into the danger of not coming out with the kind of document we want because at the last minute we are under too much pressure. I think one of the chief functions of your President will be to try to keep the work of the Convention moving apace so that this will not happen. This cannot be accomplished by one person. It is a team effort. I think it is an effort of a team of 142 members. Within that larger team there will be a smaller steering committee of your President, your Vice-Presidents, and your committee chairmen. It will be their duty, obnoxious though it may be at times, to keep proding each and every delegate to greater and renewed effort even when you may feel you are exerting every effort humanly possible.

I ask only that you cooperate with them fully and be prepared on September 12 when the Convention reassembles to move briskly so that we can complete our work by December 12.

Just one other word on a purely personal note. I felt not only humble, as I ascended this rostrum, but very, very proud, proud not for myself, but proud for this Convention, which in one afternoon has organized, has debated rules to govern and guide the destiny of this Convention, has done it well and expeditiously, and moved forward to the election of the President, all within the space of a few hours. This augurs well for the success of our entire effort, and I think it indicates more than anything else can the willingness, the desire of the delegates to this Convention to cooperate fully with one another and to move forward and get the business done.

One other thing. My very heartfelt and sincere thanks to Billy James and Jim Clark. I deeply appreciate what was much more than a gesture. Thank you.

At 6:20 o'clock p.m. the President announced that the Convention would stand recessed for 30 minutes.

At 6:50 o'clock p.m. the Convention reconvened.

Present at roll call were the following delegates:

CONSIDERATION OF RESOLUTIONS PERTAINING TO THE ORGANIZATION OF THE CONVENTION

Delegates O'Conor, Cleveland, Armor, Adkins, Malkus, and Winslow introduced a resolution requesting the President of the United States to honor the Constitutional Convention of 1967 with his presence on September 12, 1967.

WHEREAS:

The Delegates to the Maryland Constitutional Convention of 1967 are sincerely hopeful that the President of the United States will honor this Convention by attending its opening session on September 12, 1967.

This Constitutional Convention is truly one of the epic and memorable public events in the State of Maryland. Its deliberations will be recorded in history as having fundamental significance, and they would be vastly enhanced by the presence of the President.

All the Delegates to the Convention unite in inviting the President of the United States to attend and address the opening of the Convention on September 12, 1967; now, therefore

BE IT RESOLVED BY THE MARYLAND CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION OF 1967, That President Lyndon B. Johnson is cordially invited to honor this Convention by attending and addressing its opening session in the City of Annapolis on September 12, 1967; and

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, That the President of the Convention is requested to send a copy of this Resolution to President Lyndon B. Johnson, White House, Washington, D.C.

Which resolution was read and adopted by voice vote.

At 8:35 o'clock p.m., on motion of Delegate Abramson, duly seconded, the Convention adjourned to 12:00 o'clock noon September 12, 1967.

PRESENTATION OF MACE TO CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION

The Mace of the Constitutional Convention was presented to the President by Mr.

Howard T. Brenner, President of Samuel Kirk & Son, Inc., with the following address:

Mr. President
Mr. Tawes and Delegates

When the Constitutional Convention Commission approached my Company with the proposition that they desired a mace, a symbol of popular sovereignty, for the Constitutional Convention of 1967, we were highly honored and thought it most appropriate that we should design, make and present one to the Convention. After all, we have been a part of and have enjoyed the many blessings of the great State of Maryland for more than 150 years.

In our archives we had the original patterns of the Great Seal of Maryland used when we made the silver service for the cruiser Maryland in 1904. This service is now on display here in the State House. These in turn were exact reproductions taken from the original seal, made of silver in England and sent to the province in 1648. I understand this original seal is now on display in the Hall of Records here in Annapolis.

In designing the mace we incorporated the seal, cast in silver. I understand ours is the only state seal of strictly heraldic character. This is supported in a circle of silver, the circle being symbolic of continuity—without beginning or ending. On the circle is inscribed "State of Maryland, Constitutional Convention of 1967". The handle and supporting base are of walnut.

And so, Mr. Eney, it is my privilege and pleasure as a representative of Samuel Kirk & Son to present to you, President of the Constitutional Convention of 1967, and the delegates here assembled, this Mace, a symbol of dignity and collective authority of the Constitutional Convention which represents the popular sovereignty of the people of Maryland.

The President accepted the Mace from Mr. Brenner on behalf of the Constitutional Convention.

ADDRESS BY H. VERNON ENEY, PRESIDENT CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION OF MARYLAND

On August 17, 1867, the fourth Constitutional Convention of Maryland adjourned after seventy-five daily sessions and submitted to the people of the State a constitution which endured for one hundred years. Today, one hundred years, twenty-six days and something more than two hundred amendments later, we assemble as the fifth Constitutional Convention of Maryland. It seems to me that before we begin our work as the elected delegates to that Convention it behooves us to reflect for a moment on the task before us, consider the conditions and circumstances which bring us here today, and think a bit about the problems to be solved and the possible methods of their solution.

Today we live in a great stream of change, a stream which moves so rapidly and with such force that sometimes we are at our destination before we realize that we have started, and oftentimes we have begun our journey before we have charted our course.

One hundred years ago the people of Maryland and of the nation were living in a period of great social unrest, a period of great stress and strain. Today we are again living in a period of great social unrest, another period of great stress and strain. But there is a tremendous difference between the two eras. Then, our nation was at the end of the most bitter and heartrending conflict it has ever known, either before or since—a period which saw brother pitted against brother in cruel and agonizing fratricidal warfare. Maryland, as a border state between the opposing social and economic forces and torn asunder by its own inner conflicts, had become a battleground for the armies of the Union and the Confederacy. But, although all the wounds had not been healed and although there were many bitter memories of excesses committed in the name of military necessity, of a great city living under the shadow of the guns on Federal Hill, and of soldiers at the polls supervising the elections, nevertheless the armed conflict had ended and we were looking forward hopefully to a future of peace and quiet, liberty and contentment, and economic and cultural rehabilitation and progress.

Today we are not at the end of a period of conflict; we are in the midst of it. We live not only in a period of great social unrest amidst all the stresses and strains produced by such unrest, but in a period in which conflict and strife are again prevalent. We are no longer a border state caught between the opposing forces of the North and the South but an island in a sea of hatred and violence. We do not have armies pitted against each other in mighty battles on our soil, but, more frightening perhaps, we see all about us throughout our nation, citizen pitted against citizen in scenes of equal violence which seem to erupt almost spontaneously and perplex and plague us all. We grope blindly for solutions to problems which appear to be insoluble and, through it all, the swift current of events seems at times to be carrying us to the brink of disaster.

We cannot in this Constitutional Convention of Maryland in the space of the next ninety or one hundred and twenty days—or even longer if we had the time—solve the problems of the world, of the nation, or even of our State. But we can and we must, within the time allotted to us, provide the framework of a government for our State which is capable of grappling with the problems confronting us today and with at least a possibility of being able to solve those problems in such a way as to prevent our State from being caught up and destroyed in the inferno of hate and conflict and bitter defiance which we see all about us. We must forge a document which the people of our State will adopt on May 14, 1968 and thus make it a constitution and not a mere exercise in semantics—a scrap of paper. We must draft a constitution which will guarantee to every citizen the right to pursue his own goal of personal happiness and seek his own level of achievement as free from interference by government or his fellow citizens as the complexities of our modern society can permit and allow. And we must draft a constitution which can meet these objectives not only for us but for our children and our grandchildren and their children, a constitution which can survive as a meaningful, operative document even when subjected to the continuing assaults of changing conditions and of problems and situations which we can not only not contemplate but not even dream of today, a constitution which can provide an effective government for our nearly four million citizens of today, and also for our ten or more million citizens of tomorrow.

As we set about this task, we must realize that our separate existence as a sovereign state—a government of and by and for the people of Maryland—is at stake. We are not alone in this; the separate existence of every one of our fifty states as viable and effective instruments of local government is challenged. The course of events of the past one hundred years has caused a metamorphosis. We and our sister states, so apprehensive and fearful in the last century of the powers of government, put in our state constitutions shackles and restraints which made our state governments incapable of meeting the needs of the people in a rapidly changing, urbanized society. The inability of state and local governments, because of these constitutional limitations and restrictions, to meet the simple everyday needs of people—the need for pure air and water, sewer systems, education, cultural advantages, recreational opportunities, mass transportation—created a void, a void into which our federal government has stepped to an ever-increasing extent.

These needs of the people—needs so vast and complex that they can only be met by governmental action, needs which traditionally had been and, by all scientific principles of government, should continue to be met by state and local government—simply had to be met. These governmental services required by the people had to be supplied. The inability of the state and local governments to do so has forced the federal government to meet the demand and supply these purely local requirements.

And so, we, the citizens of what we proudly call the great free State of Maryland, have, along with our fellow citizens of other states, become cringing, favor-seeking vassals, fawning at the feet of Uncle Sam, grateful for the few crumbs of our own money tossed to us. But that great big, sprawling, bureaucratic colossus sitting astride the Potomac is too big, too far removed from the people, too impersonal to make more than uncertain, feeble, ineffective and oftentimes inept attempts to solve these problems which ought to be solved by state and local governments.

The challenge is clear for us to see; it is written in large bold letters on the walls of this historic State House. We have almost complete freedom in drafting a constitution to submit to our people. So long as it provides for a republican form of government, so long as it does not transgress the rights and liberties of the individual citizen guaranteed and protected by the Constitution of the United States, we, the people of the State of Maryland, can have almost any kind of constitution we choose. Certainly a people with the genius for designing a craft which can be hurtled millions of miles through space and yet be controlled minutely in its landing on a distant planet ought to be able to devise a system of government which can provide for our people at a local level those essential services which are so sorely needed—services which are needed now but which are going to be needed to an ever-increasing degree as our society becomes more and more urbanized and as our population grows to an extent difficult for us even to comprehend at the present time.

A skeptic may scoff and say these are but lofty, high-sounding euphemisms which cannot possibly be accomplished by words emblazoned on a piece of paper, no matter how formal and fundamental the document. He may say that in the final analysis whether a government is good or bad, effective or ineffective, an efficient provider of services or an inept, bureaucratic maze depends not upon the will of the people which brings it into existence or upon the piece of paper which defines its scope, its power and its organization, but upon the people who manage it. He may say therefore that the problems of our time cannot be solved or even substantially affected by the constitution which we may recommend.

This, however, is not at all the case. True it is that the efficiency, the effectiveness of our government will, in the final analysis, depend upon the people we select to operate and conduct that government, but the kind of people who are willing to undertake the task of governing, and therefore the character of the government itself, will be greatly influenced by the constitution adopted by the people of our State.

We can attract to the legislature the most thoughtful and capable of our citizens if we clothe the legislature with sufficient dignity, authority and power to legislate properly, provide for a legislature which can come to grips with the pressing problems of state-wide concern and solve them. We can induce our ablest citizens to seek election as the chief executive of our State if we grant to the executive branch sufficient authority and power to carry out the policies which a governor may have been elected to put into effect. We can hold such a chief executive responsible for his actions and those of his appointed subordinates provided we give him power to appoint the competent and to remove the incompetent.

Our increasingly difficult problems of crime and juvenile and adult delinquency will not be solved by the constitution we draft, but we can in the constitution provide the cornerstone which will form a basis for the solution of those problems. I firmly believe that crime and delinquency can be controlled if we have widespread respect for the law by citizens in every social and economic strata.

We can have such widespread respect for the law if we provide in the constitution for a judicial system capable of administering justice—justice as between the state and the individual and justice as between man and man—speedily, efficiently and with finality; but, to do this, we must provide at every level of the judicial system judges who are trained in the law, judges who are not only not mediocre or barely qualified or even highly qualified, but judges at every level of the judicial system who are the best available—the best of the best.

We must provide a system which will create courts that are unmistakably courts so that every person knows when he enters the courtroom that he is in a court of law of the State of Maryland, regardless of whether it be the lowest court of our system hearing a traffic case or the highest court of our State hearing argument on an intricate question of law. If we do this, we will go a long way towards inculcating in every citizen a deep and abiding respect for the law.

We must also bring the government responsible for supplying the everyday needs of the citizen—police protection, fire protection, schools, water, sewers, garbage collection and similar needs—closer to the people and at the same time we must recognize that the need for these services transcends local and artificial geographical boundaries and that local government encompasses much more than the municipal and county governments with which we are familiar. We can do this by providing in the constitution the means by which other local governments capable of solving these problems can be formed and established and be granted the necessary powers.

We must also not forget the individual and his rights and liberties. Many say that a declaration of rights in a state constitution is an anachronism, that the needed protection of the individual is furnished by the federal constitution and need not be reaffirmed in a state constitution. From this I dissent. It seems to me that it is essential that the document which creates and defines and provides the power of our state and local governments should also define and state with clarity and directness and emphasis those individual rights and liberties which those governments cannot and shall not transgress.

Now, how can we achieve these lofty objectives? Certainly they cannot be realized merely by their enunciation. The inspired speech, the neatly turned phrase, the eloquence of an earlier Webster or Clay or a modern-day Churchill, the profundity of a Burke, or even the inspired genius of a Madison, a Hamilton, or a Jefferson alone will not achieve these objectives or write a constitution for this Convention. Nor can the objective be achieved by delegating the task to the most capable and brilliant staff which could be assembled to assist this Convention. The task can be performed, the desired result can be achieved only by the unremitting, grinding, grueling, exacting, time-consuming toil of each and every one of the one hundred forty-two delegates to this Convention.

To aid in accomplishing this purpose, the Convention has been divided into committees as provided by the Rules adopted on July 11, 1967. I have to the best of my ability made assignments to these committees with the single-minded purpose of providing the best possible committee organization for the Convention. In doing so, I do not doubt that I have irritated some and disappointed other delegates. For this I am sorry and I sincerely trust that any of you disappointed in receiving the committee assignment which he sought will nevertheless put his shoulder to the wheel and give his all, and I am confident that you will.

To assist the committees as much as possible, we are in the process of providing as capable a staff as we can recruit. Each committee will have assigned to it a full-time staff adviser—a person who has the educational background and the practical experience to enable him to assist the chairman in planning and guiding the work of the committee and to counsel with and aid the committee in its hearings, in its deliberations and in its drafting. There will also be assigned to each committee a full-time administrative assistant whose duty it will be to relieve the chairman and the staff adviser of the purely administrative functions such as scheduling hearings, notifying persons of postponed hearings, arranging for the use of the appropriate hearing rooms when the occasion requires it, assisting the staff adviser in preparing the committee's recommendations, seeing that the committee's recommendations are processed through the proper channels, and doing the other myriad administrative tasks which will be required in connection with the work of each committee. The only other full-time personnel of each committee will be one secretary to the chairman and the committee and one assistant secretary who will also serve as the personal secretary of the members of the committee.

To these committee staff persons, we will add a group of research assistants—professional people skilled in various phases of research. They will be available upon assignment by the Director of the Research Staff or the Chief of Staff to perform specific research projects for various committees.

In recruiting a staff for the Convention, we have kept in mind the fact that this Constitutional Convention of Maryland is not only unique in our generation but is not likely to be repeated in this State for several more generations. We have therefore endeavored to select not only competent professional and clerical personnel but also to involve to the greatest possible extent the young people of our State so that they too may be a part of this historic undertaking and become imbued with a desire to participate actively in public affairs or even perhaps to make a career of public service. Do not be surprised therefore to discover among the staff assigned to positions normally not thought of as professional, persons of professional stature, capacity and competence, and do not be surprised to find that the young men and women who serve as administrative assistants to the committees are similarly trained and skilled.

As a part of this same policy of involving the young citizen, we have, with the support and assistance of the State Department of Education, recruited approximately fifty young boys and girls, all of whom are honor students in advanced senior classes in the secondary schools of the State. They have been nominated by the principals of their schools, not only for their scholastic excellence, but also for their interest in the work of the Constitutional Convention and what it means to the State of Maryland, their desire to participate and their other qualities of alertness and leadership. They will serve as your pages in the sessions of the Committee of the Whole and of the Convention and as messengers to the committees. Several will serve continuously throughout the session, but most of them will serve for periods of two weeks, after which they will return to their classes for a period and then serve again for another two-week period so that each of these young people will serve as a page for a period of at least four weeks. They are not observers; they are workers. During the period of their service they will be housed in Annapolis either at St. John's College or in private homes, and they will work full time each and every day of their service. Use them, make them feel that they are earning their pay, performing a service and participating in a public event of the highest order. They will carry back to their homes, to their schools, and to their friends and acquaintances an impression of the work of this Convention which could be obtained in no other way.

This Convention, by an overwhelming vote at its organization session on July 11, adopted the principle that all sessions of the Convention and of its committees should be open to the public. In keeping with this principle and in accordance with the requirements of Section 14 of the Convention Enabling Act, we plan to provide not merely a public relations office but an information service which we hope will, as its name implies, furnish complete information service not only to the press and other news media but also to visitors and to the public generally.

This information service will be housed in one corner of the large room used by the Department of Legislative Reference during sessions of the General Assembly and will be freely accessible to the public at all times. A card index showing the current status of every proposal pending before the Convention and each of its committees will be maintained and the information service will at all times have on hand readily available a copy of every delegate proposal, committee recommendation or other document prepared for the use of delegates or distributed to them.

The information service will be staffed by persons whose duty it will be not merely to prepare formal press releases or other public information bulletins but to answer inquiries as to every phase of the operations of the Convention. They are to be of service and will, upon the request of any representative of the news media or any member of the public, obtain information necessary to answer any reasonable inquiry. It will be our purpose to have complete and current coordination between each committee and the information service through the medium of the administrative assistants so that the information service will be aware of what is happening in every committee at all times.

It should be noted at this point that the State Department of Education has also worked out for the secondary schools of the State a course of study on the need for constitutional revision in Maryland, and the activities of this Convention will become an important part of the teaching in those schools of civics, history and of courses in the problems of democracy. The Constitutional Convention Commission and your officers have cooperated with the State Department of Education in this project, and the State Superintendent of Schools a few days ago issued an elaborate resource guide on the Maryland Constitutional Convention comprising approximately 115 pages and designed especially to aid the teachers in the secondary public schools of the State. In addition, a seminar for those teachers will be held in a few days to discuss this program in detail. As a part of this program, large numbers of school children will be visiting the Convention and observing its work throughout the next three months.

Other institutions and interested groups are likewise planning special lectures, seminars and discussion groups and visits to the Convention. For instance, the Enoch Pratt Library in Baltimore and the Baltimore County Library are jointly undertaking a very comprehensive program of public information and education on the subject of the Constitutional Convention and have invited representatives of Baltimore City and Baltimore County business and community groups to meet with library representatives next week to discuss methods of accomplishing this purpose. Your officers will also participate in this session.

All of these efforts will, we hope, result in the visits of numerous groups, both large and small, to observe the work of the Convention in the next few months. We have thus far had requests from several large groups—one consisting of two hundred teachers—to observe the Convention in session. It is of course highly desirable that this participation by the public be encouraged in every possible way, and, at the same time, it must be done in such a way as not to interfere with the work of the Convention or of its committees. To assist in this and to make these visits more meaningful, we hope to have each group visiting the Convention first assemble to view either a motion picture or one of three narrated slide shows which are available and to hear a brief talk from a member of the Convention staff specially assigned for this purpose. This staff member will then escort the group to committee rooms or to the Convention galleries. It will be the duty of the staff tour leader to be familiar with the particular topic being discussed by the committee or the Convention at the time of the tour so that he may inform the visiting group about it and answer any questions which may be asked.

Nearly two weeks ago, your officers and the chairmen of all committees had a lengthy session at which we reviewed the organization of the Convention staff and considered a possible timetable for the work of the Convention. We are all agreed that the work of the Convention must be planned for completion within ninety days so that the possible thirty days additional which may be authorized will be available as a cushion of time to provide for unexpected contingencies. To achieve this goal of completion in ninety days, we must plan our work on a schedule of five days a week from 9:00 A.M. to 5:00 P.M. beginning immediately.

I will not attempt this afternoon to give you all the details of the program, except to point out that very, very roughly we contemplate thirty days for hearings, thirty days for drafting and discussion, and thirty days for debate and decision. At the early stages of our work there will not be a necessity for lengthy sessions of the Convention and no necessity for sessions of the Committee of the Whole. Accordingly, in order to allow as much uninterrupted time as possible for committee hearings, the daily sessions of the Convention will, for the present time, be scheduled for 2:00 P.M. For the most part, they will probably last only one-half hour or a little more. This will permit committees to have continuous hearings from 9:00 A.M. until lunchtime and then to resume for a discussion or study period following the recess of the Convention until approximately 5:00 P.M. I have no doubt that even with this schedule longer and later sessions will be required toward the end of the ninety-day period.

Each of you knows from the memoranda heretofore sent to you that your two vice-presidents and I are each assigned as liaison members to several committees and that members of the Committee on Style, Drafting and Arrangement and members of the Committee on Calendar and Agenda are also assigned as liaison members to the several committees. This is for the purpose of coordinating the work of the various committees to the greatest possible extent. To further this effort at coordination and to keep the Convention operating as smoothly as possible, your officers plan to have brief daily meetings among themselves and, in addition, will meet regularly once a week with the chairmen and vice-chairmen of committees. There will also be meetings of the professional staff at regular intervals. Suggestions from any of you to aid further in coordinating the work of the Convention or of its committees will be gratefully received.

The chairmen of the committees at our meeting week before last agreed to present the draft constitution recommended by the Constitutional Convention Commission as proposals to the Convention. Each article or other appropriate subdivisions of the draft constitution will be submitted as a separate proposal. There are sixteen such proposals which are being introduced today by the chairmen of the respective committees at the request of the Constitutional Convention Commission.

On behalf of each chairman, I want to point out that the introduction of a proposal by him does not indicate that he personally either agrees or disagrees with the provisions of the proposal. The introduction by the chairman is merely a means of placing the draft constitution recommended by the Constitutional Convention Commission formally before the Convention.

Each delegate has heretofore received a copy of the interim report of the Constitutional Convention Commission. Each of you should have received this morning a copy of the final report of the Constitutional Convention Commission, Chapters III and IV of which are the same as the interim report which you heretofore received. The remaining four chapters and appendix will, it is hoped, furnish much additional valuable information for the delegates. It is intended that these reports shall be used by you as working documents and whatever number of copies you may desire will be available for you so that you may mark up your present copies in any way you choose. The copy of the report which you received this morning is paperbound, but within the next week or two each delegate will receive an additional copy of the report bound in more durable cloth.

The program which I have outlined cannot be achieved easily. I know of no method or procedure by which our goal can be reached except by patient, persistent and unremitting toil. There is no high speed, easily traveled freeway available to us but only the winding, twisting, tortuous and narrow road of concentrated effort, at times rutted with despair, beset with curves around which we cannot see too clearly and requiring courage and boldness to travel but leading us ever onward and upward until we reach the peak of completion when we can see laid out in its entirety, as though a panorama viewed from a mountain top, a constitution which we can gladly recommend to the people of the State of Maryland, a constitution to which we will all be honored to subscribe our names, and a constitution which will not only be adopted by the people of the State of Maryland but proudly accepted by them as their basic law for the present and the foreseeable future. I pledge to you my complete dedication to this purpose.

REPORT OF COMMITTEE ON RULES, CREDENTIALS AND CONVENTION BUDGET

Delegate Scanlan, Chairman, Committee on Rules, Credentials and Convention Budget introduced the First Report of the Committee. (Presented September 15, 1967).

The President accepted the report and announced that it would be considered on Thursday, September 14, 1967, under Rule 64.

REPORT OF COMMITTEE ON CALENDAR AND AGENDA

Delegate Powers, Chairman, Committee on Calendar and Agenda, reported the daily calendar and agenda.

Which was read and adopted by voice vote.

Delegate Powers, duly seconded, moved that the interfering rules be suspended to permit consideration of Resolution No. 2 at this session.

Said motion prevailed by voice vote.

REPORT OF COMMITTEE ON RULES, CREDENTIALS, AND CONVENTION BUDGET

Delegate Scanlan, Chairman, Committee on Rules, Credentials, and Convention Budget, presented the First Report of the Committee on Rules, Credentials, and Convention Budget introduced September 12, 1967.

The Committee on Rules, Credentials and Convention Budget has considered a number of suggested changes in the Rules which the Convention adopted on July 11, 1967. The Committee now recommends that amendments be adopted to Rules 5, 20, 21, 24, 28, 36, 37, and 48.

In addition to the amendments proposed, the Committee recommends that the Secretary be empowered to correct any errors in the cross-reference appearing in the Rules of the Convention.

The Committee recommends against the proposal which would have limited debate on third reading to new matter. The Committee did so because the liberality with which the previous question may be moved under these Rules would preclude the use of third reading as a last stand filibuster.

The Committee also considered whether or not it was necessary to make a formal rule change in order to permit the presiding officer to recognize a committee chairman for the purpose of merely making a short oral status report of the activities of his committee. These reports would keep the delegates informed of the activities of the various committees but the Committee decided that no change in the rules was necessary to authorize the presiding officer to recognize a committee chairman for the purpose of making an oral report. However, in no sense are such oral reports equated with the formal written reports the committees will submit in connection with their substantive recommendations.

Delegate Scanlan, Chairman, Committee on Rules, Credentials, and Convention Budget introduced the following amendments recommended by the Committee on Rules, Credentials, and Convention Budget to its Final Report.

Amendment to Rule 5—

In Rule 5 delete the third sentence and insert the words, "a vice-chairman," after the word, "chairman," in the first sentence.

Delegate Scanlan moved, duly seconded, to table the above amendment to Rule 5.

Said motion prevailed by yeas and nays, as follows:

Affirmative

Delegates—

President, Tawes, Clark J., James, Abramson, Adkins, Anderson, Bamberger, Bard, Barrick, Baumann, Beachley, Beall, Bennett, Blair, Boileau, Bothe, Boyer, Boyles, Bradshaw, Bryson, Burdette, Burgess, Bushong, Buzzell, Byrnes, Caldwell, Chabot, Child, Cicone, Clagett, Clarke E. J., Cleveland, Dabrowski, Darby, Della, Dorsey, Dukes, Dulany, Eckendrode, Finch, Fornos, Fox, Frederick, Freedlander, Gallagher, Gilchrist, Gill, Gleason, Grant, Groh, Grumbacher, Gullett, Hanson, Hardwicke, Hargrove, Harkness, Harris, Henderson, Hickman, Hopkins, Hostetter, Hutchinson, Jett, Johnson, Kahl, Key, Kiefer, Kirkland, Kosakowski, Koss, Leitzel, Linton, Lord, Malkus, Marion, Maurer, Mentzer, Miller B., Miller E. T., Moser, Mosner, Mudd, Murphy, Murray D. S., Needle, Neilson, Neumann, O'Conor, Pascal, Penniman, Peters, Powers, Price, Raley, Robey F. C., Robie K. L., Rollins, Rosenstock, Rush, Rybczynski, Scanlan, Schloeder, Schneider, Sherbow, Sickles, Siewierski, Singer, Smith J. H., Smith M. H., Sollins, Sosnowski, Soul, Stern, Storm, Sybert, Taylor H. E., Ulrich, Vecera, Wagandt, Webb, Wheatley, Willis, Willoner, Winslow.

Amendment to Rule 20—

"Rule 36", appearing in the second line of Rule 20, should read "Rule 37".

With permission of the Convention the above amendment to Rule 20 was withdrawn.

New Rule 20A—

Add a new Rule 20A, to follow Rule 20.

"Except upon the affirmative vote of a majority of the delegates then present and voting, no delegate may speak longer than fifteen (15) minutes without being required by the presiding officer to yield the floor. The restriction imposed by this Rule shall not be applicable to chairmen and vice-chairmen of committees when the latter are presenting a report of their committee to the Convention or to the Committee of the Whole, and the same exemption from the requirement of this Rule shall also be applicable in the case of the chief spokesman for a minority report of a committee of the Convention."

Which amendment was read and adopted by voice vote.

Amendment to Rule 21—

At the beginning of the first sentence of Rule 21, add the following language:

"Except in the case of the delegates who have been elected as officers of the Convention."

Which amendment was read and adopted by voice vote.

Amendment to Rule 24—

At the conclusion of the title of Rule 24, add the phrase "and the Committee of the Whole". In the next-to-last line of the Rule, after the word "Convention", add "or of the Committee of the Whole".

Which amendment was read and adopted by voice vote.

Amendment to Rule 28—

Add as a last sentence to present Rule 28 the following:

"All committee recommendations shall be accompanied by a concise written explanation of the reasons for the committee's actions."

Which amendment was read and adopted by voice vote.

Amendment to Rule 28—

Add a new Rule 28A to follow Rule 28 and to read as follows:

"Except, upon the affirmative vote of a majority of the delegates present and voting, the Committee of the Whole will receive no final report of a substantive committee after November 17, 1967."

Which amendment was read and adopted by voice vote.

Amendment to Rule 36—

Add the phrase "except the Committee on Style, Drafting and Arrangement" after the word "committee" just prior to the semi-colon appearing in the sixth line of Rule 36.

Which amendment was read and adopted by voice vote.

Amendment to Rule 37—

On page 11 of the mimeographed Rules, it is proposed that a Rule 37 be adopted, to read as follows:

"Before a proposal is taken up by the Committee of the Whole, any delegate (with the Chairman of the Committee on Calendar and Agenda to have the prior right) shall be privileged to move that a limitation be placed upon the time of the debate and consideration of such proposal by the Committee of the Whole, provided that equal time is to be afforded to the proponents and the opponents of such proposal, and the Committee may fix in advance of consideration of a proposal or proposals a time for the Committee to rise and report."

Which amendment was read and adopted by voice vote.

Amendment to Rule 48—

In Rule 48 and at the end of line 15 thereof insert a period after the word "question"; in line 16 thereunder strike out the following: "or questions in their order down to and including the main question"; and in lines 1 and 2 at the top of page 16 strike out the following: "provided, however, that when the previous questions shall be ordered amendments then on the chief clerk's desk shall be acted upon".

Which amendment was read and adopted by voice vote.

Miscellaneous Recommendations of the Committee

In addition to the amendments proposed above, the Committee recommends that the Secretary be empowered to correct any errors in the cross-references appearing in the Rules of the Convention.

The Committee recommended against the proposal which would have limited debate on third reading to new matter. The Committee did so because the liberality with which the previous question may be moved under these Rules would preclude the use of third reading as a last stand filibuster.

The Committee also considered whether or not it was necessary to make a formal rule change in order to permit the presiding officer to recognize a committee chairman for the purpose of merely making a short oral status report of the activities of his committee. These reports would keep the delegates informed of the activities of the various committees but the Committee decided that no change in the rules was necessary to authorize the presiding officer to recognize a committee chairman for the purpose of making an oral report. However, in no sense are such oral reports equated with the formal written reports the committees will submit in connection with their substantive recommendations.

Which was read and adopted by voice vote.

Delegate Scanlan, Chairman, Committee on Rules, Credentials, and Convention Budget, reported unfavorably on Resolution No. 2 concerning the daily schedule of the Constitutional Convention introduced by Delegate Della, September 14, 1967.

Which Resolution No. 2 was read and rejected by voice vote.

RESIGNATIONS

September 27, 1967

Honorable H. Vernon Eney
President, Constitutional Convention
State House
Annapolis, Maryland

Dear Mr. President:

Confirming my letter of September 26, 1967, I hereby tender my resignation as a delegate to the Constitutional Convention.

Sincerely yours,

/s/ Herbert R. O'Conor, Jr.

Herbert R. O'Conor, Jr.

Representative to the 22nd Session of the General Assembly

Which was read and accepted.

The Honorable Herbert R. O'Conor, Jr. resigned in order to devote full time to his work as a Representative to the 22nd Session of the General Assembly of the United Nations.

The president announced the following Select Committee to consider a replacement for Herbert R. O'Conor, Jr.

Delegate Armor—Chairman

Delegate Boyce

Delegate Byrnes

Delegate Gallagher

Delegate Harris

Delegate Hopkins

Delegate F. C. Robey, Jr.

The Honorable H. Vernon Eney, President
Constitutional Convention of Maryland
State House
Annapolis, Maryland

Dear Mr. Eney:

As you will recall, I was elected as one of four delegates from Allegany County to the Constitutional Convention. I attended the initial session of the Convention and qualified to serve in this capacity. Thereafter, I became ill and have now been hospitalized for quite some time. Due to my illness, I have been unable to be present and participate in the work of the Convention since its plenary session began on September 12, 1967.

I have discussed my illness with my personal physicians, and I have now concluded that my physical condition will prevent me from serving as a Delegate to the Convention.

Under these circumstances, I believe the interest of the citizens of Maryland and of Allegany County will best be served by my resignation so that a replacement can be appointed.

Therefore, effective immediately, I hereby resign as Delegate to the Constitutional Convention of Maryland, and I request that you initiate whatever appropriate action is necessary to enable the Convention to appoint my successor as such.

Sincerely yours,
His X Mark
Ralph R. Webster

The above-noted signature of Ralph R. Webster was personally witnessed by each of the undersigned:

STATE OF MARYLAND
ALLEGANY COUNTY TO WIT:

I HEREBY CERTIFY, That on this September 22, 1967, before me, the subscriber, a Notary Public of the State of Maryland, in and for Allegany County, aforesaid, personally appeared W. A. VanOrmer, M.D., and Lester Kiefer, M.D., both satisfactorily identified to me, and each made oath in due form of law that he is and has been attending Ralph R. Webster as his physician, that he personally witnessed the signature of said Ralph R. Webster on the attached letter addressed to The Honorable H. Vernon Eney, President, dated September 22, 1967, that prior to said signature being affixed thereto the contents of said letter were read and explained to said Ralph R. Webster, that in the medical opinion of each, said Ralph R. Webster fully understood and assented to the same, and that thereupon he did affix his signature thereto.

WITNESS my hand and Notarial Seal on the date above written.

Delegate J. Glenn Beall—Chairman
Delegate C. William Gilchrist
Delegate John H. Mosner

The Governor of Maryland, the Honorable Spiro T. Agnew was escorted into the Convention chamber and after being introduced by the President of the Convention delivered the following address:

ADDRESS BY GOVERNOR SPIRO T. AGNEW
FULL ASSEMBLY, CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION
STATE HOUSE, ANNAPOLIS, MARYLAND
SEPTEMBER 29, 1967 — 2:00 P.M.

When I took advantage of your kind invitation to address the organization session of this Convention, I suggested broad principles to guide your historic effort. I cited general objectives, stressed basic ideals, and concentrated on the essence rather than the specific.

It was my contention then, and I risk repeating it today for it cannot be overemphasized, that for a constitution to endure it must be mainly limited to an expression of great principles.

What are these great universal principles? First, to secure and sustain the sovereignty of the people. Second, to protect and perpetuate the rights of the individual. Third, to create a political structure which safeguards the citizen by a series of checks and balances among . . . but not within . . . our three traditional branches. Fourth, to develop that superstructure for the State most conducive to efficient administration, effective legislation and impartial adjudication.

Finally, to embrace a consistency of logic which reflects in the fewest words the fullest expression of a free society's solemn and voluntary contract with its government.

This assembly has been convened so that our State's Constitution may be reformed and rewritten to conform to those standards . . . standards which our present document fails to fulfill. All branches of our State government must be strengthened and streamlined. Simplicity and professionalism must be encouraged, responsibility to the electorate incisively exacted. Existing incoherencies require clarification. Superfluous detail must be discarded. Above all, a philosophy must prevail which recognizes the constitutional imperative that omission produces as significant an impact as inclusion.

Article I, the Declaration of Rights of the draft Constitution is concisely and courageously drawn with imaginative flexibility. I commend those who assisted in the drafting for their care and precision. However, I would like to make just a few observations about Article I.

In that respect, I think it most important that Section 1.02 be adopted as in the draft, and particularly that the words, "each person remaining responsible for abuse of those rights," be retained. We have recently seen the error of allowing criminal incitement to riot attempt to hide behind the cherished constitutional rights of freedom of expression. The draft language of Section 1.03 courageously faces the truth that the right "not to worship," alien though it may seem to us who believe in God, provides the only absolute guarantee that we will not later be told how and to what degree we must worship. In my opinion, Section 1.06, to be totally accurate, should be amended to read as follows: "Every person shall have the right of trial by jury of issues of fact in civil proceedings at law in the courts of this State, where the cause was recognized at common law and where the amount or value in controversy exceeds such minimum as may be fixed by statute." This change is suggested because there are certain administrative and purely statutory actions at law which did not exist at common law and for which no jury trial is assured.

I want to particularly commend and emphasize the need for the extension of the search and seizure protections of Section 1.08 to cover the unreasonable interception of communications. The uncontrolled wiretap and other snooping devices must be outlawed. Reasonable use of such surveillance is assured under the warrant procedures and court jurisdiction. The protection against double jeopardy, not extended to the states by the Federal 14th Amendment, is a progressive addition to our Declaration of Rights. Section 1.11 wisely leaves to the Legislature the question of capital punishment.

Article II governs our most precious right as free citizens—the right to elect those who govern us. In referring to voting age requirements, it is my intention to raise a question, not to criticize. I urge you to join me in serious consideration as to the logic and justice of retaining the traditional age of twenty-one years as a qualification for enfranchisement. If a man is old enough to die for his nation at eighteen, is he not old enough to vote? If a citizen is required to perform civic obligations—to pay taxes to and defend his government—is a responsible government not obligated to guarantee equivalent rights?

Consistency of logic is a cogent constitutional objective. In Maryland, statutory provisions as to legal majority vary, but these are subordinate to the single constitutional issue you must confront. Is the attainment of twenty-one years of age a just, logical pertinent or valid qualification for enfranchisement?

In Article II, tightening the referendum procedure and eliminating certain legislation from referendum petition is desirable. This portion removes ambiguities which clouded the 1867 Constitution yet guarantees the important right of referendum most effectively in terms of Maryland's present and projected population. There is one mechanical difficulty with Section 2.08, however, which could cause trouble. In cases where there is a very short space of time between the date a bill becomes law and the date the bill becomes effective as law, the referendum petition could not be completed in time to stay the law's becoming operative. This would mean that a law, passed by a simple legislative majority and made effective immediately, would have to be implemented by the executive branch prior to referendum vote and would remain in force until 30 days after a possible defeat.

The point is that the implementation of some laws is costly and we have always, and properly I believe, felt that if a law to be questioned by a referendum vote is to be effective while that vote is awaited, it must be passed by a three-fifth's majority of both houses of the Legislature. Therefore, I suggest that the Constitution provide that any bill which is to become effective less than sixty days from the date that bill becomes law must be enacted by a three-fifth's majority of both houses.

Article III, defines the scope and powers of the legislative branch. I support the retention of the bicameral form, particularly for the reasons expressed in Points 2, 3, 4 and 9 of the comments to the draft Constitution.

Section 3.03 of the draft instrument, providing for mandatory redistricting and reapportionment will assure fair and reasonable representation on a continuing basis.

Section 3.12 of the draft Constitution enables the General Assembly to convene special sessions on its own initiative. I endorse this measure as a logical and reasonable means to strengthen legislative authority.

However, I seriously question the draft's mandate to convene each regular session of the General Assembly on the third Wednesday of January. As Governor-Elect, I was acutely aware that this time factor severely inhibits review of the previous Administration's budgetary recommendations and preparation of a legislative program. For all practical purposes, the draft revision—while an improvement over the existing arrangement—curtails the exercise of leadership and initiative by the Governor-Elect.

Two modifications of the draft proposal could correct this situation. The first would be to authorize the inauguration of the incoming Governor on the first Wednesday in January; the second, to convene the regular session of the General Assembly on the first Wednesday in February. A combination of these features should facilitate adequate preparation of a legislative program, review of the budget, and encourage proper leadership by the Governor-Elect. Simultaneously, it would provide the newly elected General Assembly with an extra day to organize and elect its presiding officers.

Any discussion of Article IV must be prefaced by a discussion of the philosophy of the executive branch. The governor of any state is elected by a plurality of the voters. His authority stems from their mandate and he is directly responsible to the electorate. His election is presumed to imply the endorsement of his programs and policies as articulated during the gubernatorial campaign. While this mandate does not sanction unrestricted or unqualified executive action, ample constitutional safeguards against the abuse of executive authority are vested in the legislative and judicial branches. Checks and balances must exist among the three traditional branches of government to provide review of critical decisions and to prevent disproportionate exercise of authority. Yet this concept should not, I believe, be enlarged to allow checks and balances to exist within any single branch of government, for such an extension becomes a perversion of purpose which obscures clear lines of responsibility to the electorate and impairs initiative and effectiveness by that branch.

Under the existing Constitution's provisions, executive-administrative authority is eroded by a multiplicity of elected officials and a multi-headed board lacking unequivocal line responsibility to the Governor. If the executive-administrative function is to be performed as intended, these checks within the executive branch must be eliminated—or defined and limited—so as not to impede gubernatorial action. If a Governor is to be fully and exclusively responsible to the people, the administrators of the executive branch must be fully and exclusively responsible to him.

For this reason, I support the draft Constitution's provisions confining elective positions within the executive branch to a Governor and a Lieutenant Governor elected on the same ticket.

The post-audit review responsibility should be transferred from the Comptroller of the Treasury to the State Treasurer, who would supervise this function by a State Auditor under the legislative branch. The State Treasurer should continue to be elected by the General Assembly. However, the Comptroller, divested of post-audit responsibility, should become part of the executive branch and an appointee of the Governor.

In my opinion, the Board of Public Works should be continued but reconstituted. The Board provides a forum for public scrutiny and presents an opportunity for the expression of legislative views on significant decisions. I believe the State Treasurer, an adjunct of the legislative arm, should continue as the representative of the General Assembly. However, I believe that the State Budget Director would be a more useful and effective Board member than the Comptroller. The Budget Director, after all, plays a more active and responsible role in the implementation of Board decisions. As the Governor's appointee, he admittedly would tip the scales in the Governor's favor. This executive branch majority is an essential and necessary measure to eliminate any check within the executive branch.

While I favor an Attorney General appointed by the Governor, I recognize there are sound arguments both ways. I feel obligated to point out that the incumbent Attorney General has cooperated fully with my administration. Yet, it is obvious that it could easily have been otherwise.

In government, time as well as structure, is a critical factor. Section 4.16 of the draft Constitution—regulating gubernatorial consideration of bills enacted by the General Assembly—does not provide sufficient time for adequate deliberation by the Executive. A significant extension of the present ten-day limit is a critical need. I suggest that twenty days would be more practical. The Attorney General, I believe, would share my view since it often requires two weeks for his office to research and prepare opinions attesting to a measure's constitutionality.

The most vital sections of Article IV deal with the gubernatorial powers of appointment and reorganization. Here, Executive authority can be most logically strengthened to achieve more responsive and more efficient administration.

Section 4.19 of the draft Constitution provides the Governor with essential reorganization powers. Expanding and varying State problems virtually demand this authorization of Executive initiative. While I endorse the right of the General Assembly to approve or disapprove any reorganization plan presented by the Governor, I am concerned that the draft provision enables the Legislature to modify any proposal.

Legislative ability to modify reorganization plans obscures the clear lines of Executive responsibility. Moreover, the General Assembly may be unaware of the effect of a modification on other executive functions. Prohibition of the power to modify does not deny the Legislature the right to propose administrative reorganization or to reject it. It simply prevents revisions which might create a structure deviating in part or entirely from the Administration's original objectives.

I fully accept and give credence to the form and philosophy of Section 4.20. If gubernatorial policies are to be implemented, it is essential to assure the cooperation of all principal department heads through direct and unlimited line responsibility.

The provisions of Section 4.21 refer to the multi-headed administrative unit. A series of policy-making boards and commissions has evolved within the executive branch to direct principal departments.

I seriously question whether these multi-headed units are always in the best interest of efficient administration, although I have found incumbent boards cooperative.

However, a functional flaw becomes particularly apparent when the composition of a multi-headed unit is based upon staggered terms, allowing a majority to remain in power well beyond the terms of elected executive and legislative officials. This practice might encourage deliberate disregard of administrative controls and compromise Executive responsibility. Efficiency of a multi-headed unit is also subject to serious scrutiny inasmuch as all policy determination depends upon consensus and compromise. This, in some cases, could lead to pet project log-rolling among the Board members.

Article V generally sets forth measures to create a unified, independent and professional judicial system. It is imperative that major reforms occur within the Maryland Judiciary, especially in courts of original jurisdiction. Constitutional safeguards must be devised not only to secure full and equal justice for all, but to guarantee that judicial treatment be swift in time, professional in performance and consistent in quality.

Under the leadership of Judge Emory Niles, a distinguished committee intensively studied and subsequently recommended major reforms for the Maryland Judicial system. The Niles Plan, in essence, is incorporated within the provisions of Article V.

While I have consistently endorsed the Niles Plan in principle, I believe certain practical impediments exist which will actually undermine its laudable purpose. I would particularly draw your attention to those sections dealing with the composition of judicial nominating commissions. Section 5.15 grants the Appellate Courts Nominating Commission composed of six lay persons and six lawyers (along with a judge) the sole power to designate the lawyers who may be appointed appellate judges. It becomes instantly apparent that one-half of the State's twenty-four subdivisions cannot possibly be represented on this Commission. If a member is chosen on the basis of appellate circuits there can only be one lay member from each. This almost courts manipulation and could promote log-rolling.

We must ask ourselves honestly whether we have not simply exchanged masters rather than secured independence; whether we have truly removed the courts from politics or simply moved the politics from the General Assembly to the Bar Association; whether the judicial nominating system as proposed in the draft Constitution does not militate against the appointment of the independent lawyer, the rural lawyer, the lawyer with a small, private practice.

I have great concern over the constitutional propriety of Section 5.17, which grants the Supreme Court the right to decree what class among lawyers of the State will be eligible to serve and what class among lawyers will participate in their selection. I urge you to seek alternative constitutional safeguards which might more effectively and realistically and rigorously achieve an independent judicial branch.

Article VI properly authorizes strong executive leadership in the preparation and presentation of the State budget. Of particular interest is the controversial matter of whether or not the present time limit on State indebtedness should be increased beyond 15 years. For most purposes, pay-as-you-go is a commendable objective and one which I have consistently supported. The inclusion of $10 million as a current payment on capital improvements in the Fiscal 1968 budget attests to this fact.

Respected and experienced State fiscal experts are concerned about the impact of any bond period extension on the State's credit rating. I share their concern should such a privilege be uncontrolled and abused. However, we face a need to implement unusual and massive programs to purify our air and waters, to provide modern transportation systems, to meet the challenge to public safety.

These cannot be amortized over a 15-year period without a dramatic increase in the current tax burden. More importantly, because of the beneficial life of these improvements they probably should be liquidated over a longer period.

Because of the complexity of this subject, I will later submit to this Convention a separate memorandum specifying my views and suggesting certain changes in the draft provisions.

Section 6.05, is perhaps the most politically sensitive provision in the entire draft Constitution. As an administrator who can proudly point to significant accomplishments in increasing State financial aid to all facets of public education, I am compelled to speak out forthrightly on this measure.

While I support the provisions of Section 6.05 requiring the mandatory inclusion of budgetary requests from the legislative and judicial branches of State government, I contend that the executive and legislative branches should have the authority to review and revise the education budget. Education is a part of the executive responsibility and while I do not deny its prominence in program priority, its budgetary provisions should not be excepted any more than those of the departments responsible for securing our citizens' health and public safety. The Governor and General Assembly, who in the last analysis are responsible for raising funds to support all State programs, and who are held directly responsible by the electorate for any increase in the tax burden, must be permitted the right to exercise discretionary powers commensurate with this responsibility. There is no reason to justify the obvious want of confidence in the executive and legislative branches that this section implies.

The exception of budgetary control over education is inconsistent with the constitutional concept requiring checks and balances to exist among and not within any single branch of government. In fact, this exception violates that constitutional principle in two of our three branches.

Similar logic must be applied in your consideration of Section 6.08. If the provisions of Section 6.05 require legislative and judicial budgets to be transmitted as requested, it is my belief that the Governor should have the right to exercise line item veto over these appropriations as enacted by the General Assembly. Without this right of executive review, the electorate is bereft of safeguards limiting legislative expenses.

Article VII dealing with the powers assigned or reserved to local government demands careful review. While I strongly endorse the principles of Home Rule, I believe any mandatory or implied shift of powers to the County governments should be considered with care. I have grave reservations over any partial or ambiguous grant of authority that is not exactly balanced by a direct line of accountable responsibility to the electorate.

Sections 7.08 and 7.09 are sought to reform existing legislative practices that have been subject on isolated occasions to deliberate political manipulation and abuse. However, I do not believe that the classification system is the absolute or ultimate solution to this problem. Other alternatives should be explored to protect the counties without freezing them into rigid, restrictive categories.

Since a constitution is designed not only to serve the present but to anticipate the future, it is vital that provisions to facilitate regional government be included for that time—no matter how distant—when local governments desire to unite in some or several cooperative ventures.

Before concluding this testimony, I wish to note that this message has been intentionally limited to those major points and particular passages I most enthusiastically endorse or most seriously question. In all cases, I feel that there is room for further discussion and continued call for compromise based upon consistent logic and practical considerations. Flexibility for future generations compels flexibility in present attitudes.

The challenges of your charge are as inspiring as they are formidable. This State is blessed and commended by the experience and talent of its delegates to this Convention. In the weeks ahead you will find the intellectual demands exhausting, the efforts almost superhuman, the decisions often agonizing. Yet you shall meet these demands and make those decisions necessary to create a totally vital and viable document. If at times you despair that consensus is impossible, compromise inconceivable and, in fact, that this is too great a test for human minds, know that encouragement and inspiration reach out to you from the past—that what you attempt has been successfully accomplished before.

Confidence and comfort for today are to be gained from memories of our nation's first Constitutional Convention, where experienced and dedicated—yet fallible and mortal—men assembled to constitute a totally new, representative and democratic government. Conscious of their limitations but confident in their principles, they forged a free and flexible Federal System and gave birth to an enduring government. A government so good and great, its characterization by Thomas Jefferson almost two centuries ago is applicable today: "With all the imperfections of our present government, it is without comparison the best existing, or that ever did exist."

STATEMENT OF ABILITIES AND EXPERIENCE OF HAROLD K. RITTER,
NOMINEE TO FILL THE VACANCY
IN THE CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION
CAUSED BY THE RESIGNATION OF HONORABLE RALPH R.
WEBSTER OF ALLEGANY COUNTY

Harold K. Ritter is 51 years of age and resides at 529 Williams Street, Cumberland, Allegany County, Maryland. Mr. Ritter has been a resident of Maryland since 1938.

Mr. Ritter is a graduate of Wilkinsburg High School, Wilkinsburg, Pennsylvania, of Oakland Business School, Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, and of the Institute of Labor Studies of the University of West Virginia. He has also completed courses in Parliamentary Law at the University of Miami.

An employee of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company since 1943, Mr. Ritter has served 18 years as Treasurer of Lodge No. 27, Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, Cumberland. He has been active in legislative affairs in Maryland for 17 years, serving 12 years as local legislative representative.

Few people have had as much experience as a legislative agent in Maryland as has Mr. Ritter. For the past five years he has represented the Brotherhood of which he is a member before the General Assembly. In this capacity he has been the chief legislative representative of all trainmen in Maryland, including employees of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, the Pennsylvania Railroad, the Western Maryland Railway Company, the Patapsco and Back River Railroad, and the Canton Railroad. He also represents the Baltimore Annapolis Railroad trainmen and bus drivers and the Baltimore Motor Coach Drivers. His duties have been full time during all sessions of the General Assembly.

Mr. Ritter served two years in the South Pacific with the U.S. Army during World War II. He is a member of the American Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars, the Elk and the Masonic bodies of Cumberland. He is married to the former Margaret Courtney, of Cumberland, and the couple are the parents of two married daughters, Mrs. Barbara V. Olson and Mrs. Charlotte L. Gregg, both now residents of Hyattsville.

The vote on the election of Mr. Ritter was as follows:

REPORT OF THE SELECT COMMITTEE

TO FILL THE VACANCY CAUSED BY THE RESIGNATION OF HONORABLE HERBERT R. O'CONOR, JR.—
DELEGATE BOYCE REPORTING

The Select Committee: C. Meredith Boyce, John C. Byrnes, Francis X. Gallagher, Charney L. Harris, Anne D. Hopkins, Frank C. Robey, Jr. and G. Maxwell Armor, Jr., Chairman, has met, in accordance with Rule 71, to nominate to the Convention a person to fill the vacancy occurring by reason of the resignation of the Honorable Herbert R. O'Conor, Jr., Delegate from the Third District of Baltimore City.

The Select Committee desires to submit to the Convention as its sole nominee, Mrs. Agnes White Smith of the Third District of Baltimore City. Mrs. Smith is a qualified person in accordance with Section 7 of Chapter 4, Acts of 1967, and a concise written statement of her abilities and experience is attached hereto.

Respectfully submitted,

Select Committee

C. Meredith Boyce

Acting Chairman

STATEMENT OF ABILITIES AND EXPERIENCE OF MRS. AGNES WHITE SMITH, NOMINEE TO FILL THE VACANCY CAUSED BY THE RESIGNATION OF HONORABLE HERBERT R. O'CONOR, JR.

Mrs. Agnes White Smith resides at 323 Rossiter Avenue, Baltimore City, Maryland. She is a native Marylander and has lived in the Third District of Baltimore for many years.

Mrs. Smith has been an untiring worker and leader in community activities, many of which were school-oriented. She also has teaching experience. To the Convention she brings a broad background of experiences with the people in the community. She knows and is concerned with their needs in government.

Her interest in the Constitutional Convention led her to run in the election of the delegates. There were 63 candidates in the Third District of Baltimore City among which eight were elected. Mrs. Smith came in ninth. We therefore believe she truly represents the wishes of the voters.

The vote on the election of Mrs. Smith was as follows:

Affirmative

Delegates—

President, Tawes, Clark J., James, Abramson, Adkins, Anderson, Bamberger, Bard, Barrick, Baumann, Beachley, Beall, Bennett, Blair, Boileau, Borom, Bothe, Boyce, Boyer, Boyles, Bradshaw, Bryson, Burdette, Burgess, Buzzell, Byrnes, Caldwell, Cardin, Carson, Case, Chabot, Child, Cicone, Clagett, Clarke E. REPORT OF COMMITTEE ON
CALENDAR AND AGENDA

Delegate Powers, Chairman, Committee on Calendar and Agenda, reported the daily calendar and agenda.

Delegate Scanlan moved, duly seconded, to amend the calendar to include consideration of Resolution No. 11 (which had been withdrawn) under item 6A. Delegate Scanlan explained that the sponsor of Resolution No. 11 had requested that it be considered.

Which was read and adopted as amended by voice vote.

The President introduced the Honorable Alfred E. Driscoll, former Governor of New Jersey, who addressed the Convention.

ADDRESS OF GOVERNOR DRISCOLL

Mr. President, ladies and gentlemen of the Convention, you are engaged in an historic assignment. You are engaged in the task of constitution-making at a time when the world is beset with doubts, misunderstandings, preoccupied with the clash of apparently conflicting opinions.

Nonetheless, the future of our federal system is largely dependent upon the virility of component parts, namely the 50 states. It may be said of you that you have, when your work is concluded, deserved the favorable opinion of your fellow citizens. Based upon my own experience in 1947, when our convention began in June, in no small measure was the success of the convention due to the fact that citizens of great importance and great dignity and great integrity hammered out a constitution that their fellow citizens recognized was not one of compromise but one based upon their beliefs, their convictions.

It is easy sometimes to weaken in the presence of pressure. There will be pressures, I am sure. But the path that follows that of conviction and integrity is the path that leads to success. It is hardly necessary to emphasize the far-reaching importance of the work you have undertaken.

The American people, foremost among the world's populations in their veneration of a written constitution, look upon a constituent assembly chosen for the specific purpose of making a constitution as an expression of basic sovereignty.

The making of a modern constitution is a difficult process, the more so when we seek agreement upon the complex issues of modern society in a popularly-elected assembly such as yours.

The course of your work will undoubtedly be trying. It will test your capacity for statesmanship. It is part of our tradition, however, and a valuable tradition it is, that when we revert to fundamentals in government, we look to the highest form of representative democracy as well as the ultimate consent of the governed, expressed through the process of free elections.

I am sure that your fellow citizens expect a great work from you. While your state has lived under its present Constitution, I am told, for a considerable period of time, I know from my own experience they are now looking for something better, not changed for the purpose of change alone but changed for the purpose of bringing your fundamental doctrine in line with modern society and capable of permitting your representatives, be they in the judiciary, the executive branch of the government, to better cope with those issues.

It is your task to appraise the forces that are for and against this and that issue. It is your task as I see it to develop a constitution that may very well exist for another hundred years, even though I would recommend that provision be made for the calling of a constitutional convention periodically at regular intervals, so that an audit may be made of your basic document. This provision might very well include calling of such a convention by the legislature, and in the absence of the legislature calling the convention, then having the governor call it.

I would hope that you would strive for a simple constitution, one that more nearly follows the line of the constitution adopted by that great convention in Philadelphia so many years ago. It should be flexible. It should in my judgment strengthen each branch of the government.

In the course of your debates, you will on many occasions be tempted to adopt legislation. You will be wise to guard against this natural temptation by the judicious and conscientious exercise of that statesmanship to which I have referred. You will need will power.

The state constitution is an organic document, a basis for government. It should not be a series of legislative enactments.

If you put too much legislation into the constitution, the end result will be frustration. When legislation is permitted to be put into a constitution, it frequently shackles one branch of the government or another branch of the government.

To quote one authority, the more precise and elaborate the provisions of the constitution, the greater are the obstacles to the reform of abuses. Litigation thrives on constitutional verbosity.

There is a way out of the dilemma. I suspect from what I have heard today here in Annapolis that you have already wisely chosen that way. That is, when in your judgment a proposal is legislative in character, that there be a presentment to the governor with the understanding the governor in turn will submit the proposals contained in the presentment to the legislature for their consideration. It has worked well for us in New Jersey, and we had a number of presentments. The result was we came out with one of the shortest constitutions of all the constitutions in the country, approximately 10,000 words.

I would like to touch on the three branches of government briefly and I am certainly not, I hope you will understand this, not presuming to pose as an authority, although the task of constitution-making is near and dear to my heart, not only as a former governor, but as president of the National Municipal League, which has been developing model constitutions over the years.

The Legislative Branch of the Government. Appropriate terms should be established for the legislative branch of the government so they are not running all the time. We have the unenviable record of having our house of Assembly, our lower house, running every year. So that you can imagine where their minds were when the governor was trying to get a program through. They were wondering not whether the program was a good program, but how the people back home would think about the program and would they have an opportunity to educate the people to the point where they would support it. We lengthened the term of our House of Assembly and we lengthened the term of our senators. We also lengthened the term of the governor.

While I am talking about elections, I might say that we decided that we would not have the governor elected in a year in which a president was to be selected, because in a presidential year the issues are likely to be largely federal in character and state issues become submerged and are not given the thoughtful attention which they frequently deserve.

We were of the opinion that this would be a good idea and it was such a good idea that a person other than my own party succeeded me because he did not have to run when Eisenhower ran.

The duty confronting you today is not unlike that confronting the authors of the Declaration of Independence as explained by Thomas Jefferson in a letter to Henry Lee. The important task, Jefferson wrote, was not to find out new principles, or new arguments never before thought of, not merely to say things which had never been said before, but to place before mankind the common sense of the subject in terms so plain and firm as to command their consent.

So while you strengthen the legislative branch by giving it appropriate terms, so also it seems to me as a believer in a strong governor, that you should strengthen the position of the governor.

There is one particular proposition that I touched upon when I appeared before the committee this morning that I would like to touch upon again. We had not only the traditional checks and balances, but we had checks and balances within the executive branch of our government under the old constitution. This gave the governor a good alibi. He could say, well, I did not appoint him and I am not responsible for him. He was either elected by the people or he was elected by a joint session of the legislature.

It seems to me a governor has a right, or should have a right to appoint the heads of the various departments, with perhaps certain rare exceptions, where it may be desirable for the governor to appoint a board and have the board appoint the head of the department if it is a professional department, that appointee being subject to the approval of the governor.

Although in New Jersey the governor appointed the commissioner of education, it should certainly be a nonpolitical appointment. I was happy that the man I appointed commissioner of education was reappointed by two of my successors.

We have in our constitution a conditional veto. This has been of tremendous help both to the legislature and to the governor because frequently the purpose of a bill is a good one. Due to faulty draftsmanship, the governor in the absence of a conditional veto must either veto it outright because it is faulty in part or with tongue in cheek approve it hoping that in due course the legislature will amend it.

We also have a provision which I commend to you for your consideration. The legislature comes back automatically forty-five days after adjourning sine die to consider veto messages. To the extent it was humanly possible for us to do so on the basis of the then available knowledge, we eliminated the vest pocket veto, and the governor had to face up to every issue and say yes, I am going to sign the bill, or no, I am not going to sign the bill, and this is the reason I am not going to sign the bill or I am sending the bill back with a conditional veto, and if you will incorporate the following, spelled out in the veto message, I will probably sign it.

In New Jersey our greatest problem was the problem of the judiciary. We had every known court that you could think of. We were one of the last states to give up the court of chancery that we had inherited from our mother country. It can be said justice delayed is justice denied, and in New Jersey it was possible to delay justice for a very long time, while appeals were taken from one court to another.

We had the court of errors and appeals which was higher than the supreme court and provision was made for lay judges on the court of errors and appeals, this being the court of last resort, sometimes referred to as the court of errors and no appeals. This was a check, you see, within the judicial system. These laymen were going to see to it that the lawyers did justice even though they might not know very much law.

We had a system whereby these lay judges could practice law even while sitting on the top court. We had one instance in my early days where a judge, lay judge, wrote an opinion, he being a lawyer, and then appeared before a common pleas judge down at the bottom of the ladder and cited his own decision as being conclusive evidence of the fact the case should be decided in favor of his client. Needless to say that went out the window.

Many of the courts that we had were discontinued, including justices of the peace. I might add, we had thousands of justices of the peace and there were people who said that if you meddle with the justices of the peace, you are going to have a tremendous following against the constitution. Well, it did not work out that way. It did not work out that way because the citizens of New Jersey back in 1947 were convinced that these delegates that had worked through one long, hot summer, had studied the whole proposition thoroughly and had the courage of their convictions and that they must be right or they would not have made the proposals.

One change we did not make that I think we should have made—we continued county courts even though the chief justice, through his administrative assistant, had authority to confer upon the county courts the jurisdiction of superior courts, and to have them hear cases in counties other than their own, where the docket was overcrowded. In retrospect I think it would have been better had we simply had district courts for minor municipal matters, and one superior court system with a supreme court and let it go at that.

Well, I am sure you have your mind on the ball game and I have talked longer than I was told I should talk.

I might add I received the invitation to address this august body about 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon when I was in the middle of a lot of busy appointments.

I am sure it can be said of you that you will so conduct yourselves that it will be said of your work, as James Madison said of the work of the Convention in Philadelphia in 1787, whatever may be the judgment pronounced on the competency of the architects of the constitution, or whatever may be the destiny of the edifice prepared by them, I feel it a duty to express my profound and solemn conviction derived from my intimate opportunity of observing and appreciating the views of the convention collectively and individually, there never was an assembly of men charged with a greater and more arduous trust who were more pure in their motives or more exclusively or more anxiously devoted to the object committed to them to best secure permanent liberty and the happiness of their country.

The rights you exercise were won in 1776 and have been protected in memorable struggles through the years. The fight for liberty, however, must be won anew each day, and the contest for good government waged during the days of peace is no less important than the battle waged in the heat of armed conflict.

In a way, I envy you. I wish I could join you. Yours is a great opportunity, a great challenge. I know that the product of your work will be respected by all. Thank you very much.

REPORTS OF OTHER STANDING COMMITTEES

Delegate Scanlan, Chairman, Committee on Rules, Credentials and Convention Budget presented Committee Report No. R & C-9 introduced to the Convention on October 11, 1967, which concerned Resolution No. 8, introduced on September 27, 1967, Resolution No. 9, introduced on October 2, 1967, and Resolution No. 11, introduced on October 3, 1967. All three resolutions deal with proposed procedural requirements in connection with the introduction of delegate proposals and their consideration by substantive committee.

After explanation of the Report, Delegate Scanlan moved, duly seconded, for the adoption of the amendment as in the Report to strike out the date "October 23" and insert the date "October 27" in Resolution No. 9.

Said motion to amend prevailed by voice vote.

Delegate Scanlan announced that Resolution No. 8 had been withdrawn by its sponsors.

The question was then put by the Chair to adopt Resolution No. 9 as amended.

Resolution No. 9 as amended was adopted by yeas and nays as follows:

Delegate Scanlan, Chairman, Committee on Rules, Credentials and Convention Budget, presented Committee Report R&C-12 which was introduced on October 30, 1967.

AMENDMENT TO RULE 33

The Committee on Rules proposes that present Rule 33 be deleted and that there be substituted therefor the following language:

"Rule 33. Amendments in Committee of the Whole. Amendments offered in Committee of the Whole shall be subject to Rule 46A, Amendments Required to be Printed."

Which amendment was read and adopted unanimously by voice vote.

The Committee proposes that Rule 36 be amended by inserting the following language:

FIRST: After the words "... except that the Committee of the Whole cannot adjourn the Convention;" insert: "no question may be laid on the table;"

SECOND: After the words "... a majority of the Committee shall govern its action;" insert: "any motion to postpone further consideration shall be debatable for ten (10) minutes, no speech thereon to exceed two (2) minutes;"

Which amendment was read and adopted unanimously by voice vote.

AMENDMENT TO RULE 40

The Committee proposes that Rule 40 be amended by inserting after the first sentence of the present Rule the following:

"A 'motion' within this rule includes only the privileged motions listed in Rule 43 or a motion of merely procedural character, such as to take from the table, to send the sergeant-at-arms for absentees, etc. All other matters (except delegate proposals and committee recommendations) shall be presented as resolutions."

Which amendment was read and adopted unanimously by voice vote.

AMENDMENT TO INSERT RULE 44-A

The Committee proposes that a new Rule 44-A be added to follow Rule 44 and to read as follows:

"Rule 44-A. Motion to Take From the Table. After one session day's notice any matter laid on the table may be taken therefrom on motion, provided that business of the class of the matter to be taken from the table would then be in order."

REPORT OF COMMITTEE ON CALENDAR AND AGENDA

Delegate Powers, Chairman, Committee on Calendar and Agenda, reported the daily calendar and agenda.

Which was read and adopted by voice vote.

REPORTS OF OTHER STANDING COMMITTEES

Delegate Elroy G. Boyer, Chairman, Committee on General Provisions, introduced Committee Recommendation No. GP-2, that the Constitution include a provision on oath.

Which was read and referred to the Committee of the Whole.

Committee Memorandum No. GP-2 was offered in support of Committee Recommendation No. GP-2.

Which amendment was read and adopted unanimously by voice vote.

AMENDMENT TO INSERT RULE 46-A

The Committee recommends that the following language be adopted as a new Rule 46-A to follow Rule 46:

"Rule 46-A. Amendments to be Printed. No amendment to any committee recommendation or delegate proposal shall be considered unless it is submitted in writing and a copy thereof delivered to the floor desk of each delegate prior to the time the amendment is offered."

Which amendment was read and adopted unanimously by voice vote.

AMENDMENT TO RULE 47

The Committee recommends that the following language be added to the last sentence of Rule 47:

"Whenever a question has been divided, no final vote shall be taken on any division until all of the divisions thereof have been considered for amendment, after which further amendments to any division shall be in order, and thereafter each division will be put to final vote."

Which amendment was read and adopted unanimously by voice vote.

AMENDMENT TO RULE 50

The Committee recommends that in lieu of the present Rule 50 there be substituted the following:

"Rule 50. Reconsideration in Convention.

(a) Any question finally adopted or rejected by the Convention may be reconsidered on motion of any delegate at any time before the Convention adjourns sine die.

(b) No question may be reconsidered more than once, except if reconsideration is moved by direction of the Committee on Style, Drafting and Arrangement, or by the Convention Committee which reported on the matter to be reconsidered, or if moved after submission of a petition signed by fifteen (15) delegates to the Convention.

(c) A motion to reconsider in Convention may not be called up until the second session day after it is moved, and shall require an affirmative vote of a majority of the delegates to the Convention.

(d) A motion to reconsider in Convention may be laid on the table independent of the question to be reconsidered; but a motion to reconsider moved by direction of a committee or pursuant to petition of the required number of delegates as provided above shall be in order without regard to the tabling of any previous motion to reconsider."

Which amendment was read and adopted unanimously by voice vote.

COMMITTEE OF THE WHOLE— GENERAL ORDERS OF THE DAY

Consideration of Committee Recommendation No. LB-1

Amendment No. 9 to Committee Recommendation No. LB-1 (Supra) was still before the Committee.

On pages 1 and 2 of Committee Recommendation No. LB-1 strike all of Section 3.04 Composition of the Legislature and insert in lieu thereof the following section:
Section 3.04 Composition of the Legislature

The number of members of each house of the Legislature shall be as prescribed by law, but the number of votes in the House of Delegates shall not exceed one hundred twenty and the number of members of the Senate shall not exceed one third thereof. Each delegate shall represent one delegate district and each senator shall represent one senate district.

Each senator shall have one vote in the Senate. Each delegate shall have one vote in the House of Delegates, except delegates from those counties which are so insufficient in population that they are not entitled to elect at least one delegate completely from within the boundaries of the county. In only these insufficient population counties, one delegate shall be elected from the entire county casting a percentage vote weighted in accordance with the population of the county. If any county entitled to more than one delegate is completely surrounded by counties so insufficient in population that all their delegates cast a percentage vote, that county shall be entitled to its full number of delegates with one vote plus one delegate casting a percentage vote.

The Chair divided the question by deleting the last sentence in the first paragraph beginning with the words "Each delegate," on line 14, and ending with the word "district," in line 17, so that the question of single-member districts would be considered as the second portion of the question.

The first portion of the amendment was read and rejected by yeas and nays as follows:

In Committee Recommendation No. S&E-1; on page 1 strike all of lines 9 through 24; on page 2 strike out all of lines 1 through 50; and on page 3 strike out all of lines 1 through 6; and insert in lieu thereof the following:

"1. Right of Referendum. If, within sixty days from the date on which a bill becomes law, a petition is filed with the office of the governor to refer the law to a vote of the people, the law shall be submitted to a vote at the next general election. If rejected by a majority of those voting on the question, the law shall stand repealed thirty days thereafter. If the petition is filed before the date on which the law is to take effect, then, unless the law is one passed by the affirmative vote of three-fifths of all the members of each house of the General Assembly, it shall not take effect until thirty days after its approval by a majority of those voting on the question in the election.

"2. Referendum Petition. A petition shall be sufficient to refer a law, or any part thereof, to a vote of the people if signed by a number of qualified voters equal to five per cent of the total number of votes cast for governor in the most recent gubernatorial election, provided that not more than one-half of such required number shall be voters residing in any one county.

"3. Referendum Restriction. No plan for legislative districting or apportionment or congressional districting, no law imposing a tax and no law making an appropriation for the State government or any public institution shall be subject to referendum."

COMMITTEE OF THE WHOLE— GENERAL ORDERS OF THE DAY

Consideration of Committee
Recommendation No. S&E-1

Amendment No. 10 to Committee Recommendation No. S&E-1—

By Delegate Cardin, duly seconded.

On page 3, lines 5 and 6, delete entire subsection (b).

Which amendment was read and adopted by voice vote.

Minority Report No. S&E-1 (C)—

By Delegates Byrnes, Hutchinson, D. S. Murray, Schloeder, and White of the Committee on Suffrage and Elections, providing for indirect initiative, was presented by Delegate Byrnes.

Amendment No. 11 to Committee Recommendation No. S&E-1—

By Delegates Byrnes, Hutchinson, D. S. Murray, Schloeder, and White; duly seconded.

On page 3, line 8 of Committee Recommendation No. S&E-1, add the following Section 7, on Indirect Initiative:

Section 7. Indirect Initiative.

(a) The people reserve to themselves the power to propose laws and to enact or reject such laws at the polls. This reserved power is the initiative.

(b) The sponsors of an initiative petition shall incorporate therein either the full text of the law proposed or an adequate summary. The petition shall be signed by qualified voters equal in number to at least ten per cent of the total votes cast for governor in the last preceding gubernatorial election. Initiative petitions shall be filed with the secretary of the legislature 90 days before the beginning of the regular annual session of the General Assembly. If the proposed law is not enacted into law at the next ensuing session of the legislature, the question of the adoption of the proposed law shall be submitted by the secretary of the legislature to the qualified voters at the first regular election held not less than sixty days after the end of the session which fails to enact the proposal. The legislature may provide by law for a procedure by which the sponsors may withdraw an initiative petition at any time prior to its submission to the people.

(c) Each law proposed by the initiative shall be submitted to the qualified voters by a ballot title which shall be descriptive but not argumentative or prejudicial and which shall be prepared by the legal department of the State, subject to review by the courts. Any initiative proposal submitted to the voters shall become law only when approved by a majority of the votes cast thereon and shall take effect thirty days after the date of the vote thereon, unless the proposal itself otherwise provides.

(d) The initiative shall not be used to enact laws for legislative districting or apportionment or congressional districting, making or repealing appropriations of public funds, dedicating revenues, creating courts or defining their jurisdiction or prescribing their rules, naming or designating any person to hold a public office, or to enact or abrogate special or local laws.

(e) No law adopted by the initiative by the vote of the qualified voters under this section shall be repealed or amended by the legislature within a period of three years of adoption except by a two-thirds vote of all the members.

Amendment No. 14 to Committee Recommendation No. S&E-1—

By Delegates Gilchrist, Scanlan, and Freedlander; duly seconded.

In Committee Recommendation No. S&E-1: on page 1 strike all of lines 9 through 24; on page 2 strike out all of lines 1 through 50; and on page 3 strike out all of lines 1 through 6; and insert in lieu thereof the following:

1. Right of Referendum. If, within sixty days from the date on which a bill becomes a law, a petition is filed with the office of the governor to refer the law to a vote of the people, the law shall be submitted to a vote at the next general election. If rejected by a majority of those voting on the question, the law shall stand repealed thirty days thereafter. If the petition is filed before the date on which the law is to take effect, then, unless the law is one designated as an emergency law and is passed by the affirmative vote of three-fifths of all the members of each house of the General Assembly, it shall not take effect until thirty days after its approval by a majority of those voting on the question in the election.

2. Referendum Petition. A petition shall be sufficient to refer a law, or any part thereof, to a vote of the people if signed by a number of qualified voters equal to five per cent of the total number of votes cast for governor in the most recent gubernatorial election, provided that not more than one-half of such required number shall be voters residing in any one county.

3. Referendum Restrictions. No plan for legislative districting or apportionment or congressional districting, no law imposing a tax and no law making an appropriation for the state government or for any public institution shall be subject to referendum.

Amendment No. 4 to Committee Report No. EB-1—

By Delegate Morgan, duly seconded.

An amendment to Recommendation No. 1 in Committee Report No. EB-1.

On page 1 strike out lines 13 to 15 and insert in lieu thereof the following:

1) The Committee recommends that there be provided in the Constitution as part of the Executive Branch Article an Interdepartmental Board of Review to consist of the governor, a head of a principle department designated by the governor, and an individual appointed to the Board by the General Assembly, such board to perform in such manner and to have such of the existing powers of the Board of Public Works, together with such other powers, as the General Assembly may prescribe.

Amendment No. 5 to Amendment No. 4 to Committee Report No. EB-1—

By Delegate Fornos, duly seconded.

Strike out the words "an individual appointed to the board by the General Assembly" and insert in lieu thereof the words "the Comptroller".

Amendment No. 9 to Committee Recommendation No. LB-2—

By Delegates Koss, Winslow, and Wagandt; duly seconded.

On page 2 following line 42 of Section 3.03a Redistricting Procedure add this new section:

Section 3.—Congressional Redistricting.

The State shall be redistricted for the election of members of the House of Representatives of the United States Congress following each decennial federal census. The following requirements shall be applicable to congressional redistricting: (1) The districts shall be composed of adjoining territory and be compact in form. Natural boundaries and the boundaries of political subdivisions shall be followed as far as practicable. Each district shall not exceed in population any other district by more than fifteen per cent. (2) The General Assembly may provide by law for a redistricting commission to provide a plan for redistricting, such plan to be submitted to the General Assembly. Upon petition of any registered voter the Court of Appeals shall have original jurisdiction to review the plan of redistricting enacted by the General Assembly.

Section 3.17 Passage of Bills

No bill shall be enacted nor shall a resolution requiring the action of both houses be adopted unless it is passed in each house by a majority of all the members of that house. A vote in joint session or by either house on any bill or resolution or for the election or confirmation of any state officer shall be taken only in public session.

Section 3.17a Journals

The General Assembly shall provide by rule that each house shall keep a current daily journal of its proceedings, which shall be open to public inspection at all reasonable times, and a transcript of its debates. The General Assembly shall provide by rule that the daily journal of each house shall be published as soon as practicable and the transcript shall be available to the public. The General Assembly shall provide by rule that all final committee votes on all bills in both houses shall be entered by individual recorded vote in the daily journal of the appropriate house. The General Assembly shall provide by rule that, on final passage of a bill, including a bill proposing a constitutional amendment, or a resolution, the vote cast by each member shall be recorded in the journal of the house of which he is a member.

Consideration of Committee
Recommendation No. GP-5

Delegate Boyer, Chairman, Committee on General Provisions presented Committee Recommendation No. GP-5, that the Constitution include a provision on State Jurisdiction over Federal Enclaves.

Amendment No. 1 to Committee Recommendation No. GP-5—

By Delegates Storm and Jett; duly seconded.

On page 1 strike out all of lines 5 through 15, inclusive, and insert in lieu thereof the following:

"Notwithstanding anything contained or omitted in any act or acts of the General Assembly ceding jurisdiction over lands within this State to the United States or in giving consent to the acquisition of any lands within this State by the United States or any agency thereof, whether by purchase, lease, condemnation or otherwise, the jurisdiction of the laws of this State over persons, property, transactions, acts or omissions of individuals or private corporations within the limits of or on such lands shall not cease or terminate, except to such extent as may be specifically required by an act of Congress. Nothing in this Section shall be deemed or construed to restrict the jurisdiction and authority of this State over any lands, and the persons, property and transactions thereon, heretofore acquired by the United States. Any laws of this State continuing in effect within the limits of or on such lands shall not be effective if inconsistent with the governmental uses, purposes and functions for which the land was acquired or is used by the United States."

After debate, by unanimous consent Amendment 1 and Committee Recommendation GP-5 were passed over.

Consideration of Committee
Recommendation No. GP-7

Delegate Boyer, Chairman, Committee on General Provisions presented Committee Recommendation No. GP-7.

A Recommendation that the Constitution include a provision on amendment of the Constitution to read as follows:

An amendment to this Constitution may be proposed either by the affirmative vote of three-fifths of all the members of each house of the General Assembly or by the vote of a majority of all the members of a constitutional convention called by the General Assembly. In either case, the proposed amendment shall be submitted to the voters of the State at a special or general election as determined by the General Assembly or the convention, whichever proposes the amendment. Notice of the election shall be given as prescribed by law. Unless otherwise provided, the amendment shall become effective thirty days after approval by the vote of a majority of those voting thereon.

Amendment No. 1 to Committee Recommendation GP-7—

By Delegates Borom, Boyce, Bryson, Byrnes, Clark J., Fox, Freedlander, Gallagher, Grant, Hanson, Hopkins, Jett, Needle, Robey F. C., Robie K. L., Schloeder, Ulrich, Wagandt, White, Willoner, and Winslow; duly seconded.

On page 1 in line 6 strike out the word "either"; and in line 8 strike out the word "or" and insert in lieu thereof a comma; and in line 11 strike out the period and strike out the remainder of this line and all of lines 12 through 15, inclusive, and insert in lieu thereof the following:

", or by a petition filed with the office of the governor signed by a number of qualified voters of the State equal to ten percent of the total number of votes cast for governor in the most recent gubernatorial election, provided that not more than one-fourth of the total number shall be voters in any one county. Any such petition shall be in such form, and shall be signed and circulated in such manner as shall be prescribed by law. When proposed by the General Assembly or by the petition of the voters, the proposed amendment shall be submitted to the voters of the State at a special or general election as determined by the General Assembly and when proposed by a constitutional convention shall be submitted to these voters at a special or general election as determined by the convention.""

Consideration of Committee
Recommendation No. GP-8

Delegate Boyer, Chairman, Committee on General Provisions, presented Committee Recommendation No. GP-8, that the Constitution include a provision on constitutional convention to read as follows:

The General Assembly may by law call a constitutional convention at any time or may at any time submit to the voters of the State the question of calling a constitutional convention. If the question of calling a convention shall not have been submitted to the voters of the State for a period of twenty-five years, then it shall be submitted at the next general election. A convention shall be held within two years after a majority of those voting on the question approve the calling of a convention. Within sixty days after such approval, the governor shall appoint a commission to prepare for the convention. At its [second] regular session following such approval, the General Assembly shall provide by law for the assembling of the convention, the election of delegates, the filling of vacancies in the position of delegate, and the appropriation of sufficient funds for the work of the convention. The convention shall adopt its own rules of procedure. Any proposal recommended by the convention for changing the constitution shall be submitted to the voters of the State for adoption, and shall be effective only if approved by the affirmative vote of a majority of those voting thereon.

Consideration of Committee
Recommendation No. GP-10

Delegate Boyer, Chairman, Committee on General Provisions, presented Committee Recommendation No. GP-10.

A RECOMMENDATION that the Constitution include a provision on impeachment to read as follows:

The House of Delegates shall have the sole power of impeachment of elected officials, judges and any other state officers who may be designated by law, in cases of serious crimes or serious misconduct in office. The affirmative vote of three-fifths of all the members of the House of Delegates shall be required to impeach. Impeachments shall be tried by a special tribunal of ten judges appointed by the Court of Appeals from among the judges of the State. The concurrence of three-fifths of the judges of the special tribunal shall be required to convict. Judgment upon conviction shall be removal from office and may include disqualification from holding any office of public trust, as well as deprivation of pension rights and other privileges of office. A person tried upon impeachment, whether or not convicted, shall be liable to criminal prosecution and punishment according to law.

Amendment No. 1 to Committee Recommendation No. GP-10—

By Delegates Hanson, Hopkins, Bamberger and Gallagher; duly seconded.

Amendment No. 1 to Committee Recommendation No. GP-5—

By Delegates Storm, and Jett, duly seconded.

On page 1 strike out all of lines 5 through 15, inclusive, and insert in lieu thereof the following:

"Notwithstanding anything contained or omitted in any act or acts of the General Assembly ceding jurisdiction over lands within this State to the United States or in giving consent to the acquisition of any lands within this State by the United States or any agency thereof, whether by purchase, lease, condemnation or otherwise, the jurisdiction of the laws of this State over persons, property, transactions, acts or omissions of individuals or private corporations within the limits of or on such lands shall not cease or terminate, except to such extent as may be specifically required by an act of Congress. Nothing in this section shall be deemed or construed to restrict the jurisdiction and authority of this State over any lands, and the persons, property and transactions thereon, heretofore acquired by the United States. Any laws of this State continuing in effect within the limits of or on such lands shall not be effective if inconsistent with the governmental uses, purposes and functions for which the land was acquired or is used by the United States."

Section 6.12 Amendment of Budget Bill

The General Assembly may amend the budget bill by increasing or decreasing the appropriation for any item included in the budget, by transferring funds among items included in the budget or by including items not in the budget bill as introduced. The total appropriation included in the budget bill as enacted by the General Assembly shall not exceed the total budgeted expenditures submitted by the governor. The General Assembly shall not reduce or strike out any appropriation of sufficient funds for the timely payment of the interest upon and installments of principal of all state indebtedness and appropriations required by law for state support of public school systems. The compensation of a public officer shall not be decreased during his term of office.

Section 6.13 Enactment of Budget Bill

The General Assembly shall remain in session until the budget has been enacted. If the budget bill shall not have been passed by both houses of the General Assembly by the eightieth day of its regular session, the General Assembly shall finally enact no other legislation until the budget bill has been enacted. Within ten days following passage of the budget bill by both houses of the General Assembly, the governor may reduce or strike out any appropriation contained in the budget bill, and each reduction or veto of an appropriation item shall be effective unless overridden by a vote of three-fifths of all the members of each house of the General Assembly within ten days after the action by the governor."

MESSAGE FROM THE GOVERNOR

Executive Department
Annapolis, Maryland

January 10, 1968

To the Delegates of the Constitutional Convention of Maryland:

Upon the convocation of this Convention, I expressed my hope that you would draft a document designed to endure; a Constitution which adhered to great principles and still assured flexibility for the future. The Constitution which you sign today more than fulfills my hopes.

ANNAPOLIS, WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 10, 1968

The Convention met at 12:00 o'clock noon, the President presiding.

Invocation was offered by Delegate Reverend Bruce K. Price, Patapsco Methodist Church, Baltimore, Maryland.

Present at roll call were the following delegates:

President, Tawes, Clark J., James, Abramson, Adkins, Anderson, Armor,

Maryland owes a debt to you, the forefathers of the future, for you have created a Constitution which I believe is without parallel in this nation. Throughout the past months you have labored conscientiously, subordinating personal and partisan interests to achieve the best interests of Maryland. The 1968 Constitution reveals in its brevity and honest simplicity the success of your endeavors.

I am grateful to have served as Governor during this historic convention, and I look forward with confidence to the day of ratification. You have created a superb Constitution. It is one in which all Marylanders can take pride, an enduring document truly able to sustain our State in this century and serve as our heritage for the next one hundred years. I congratulate you and I salute you.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

January 10, 1968

H. Vernon Eney, President
Constitutional Convention of Maryland
State House
Annapolis, Maryland

Dear Mr. Eney:

I would like to express my appreciation for the opportunity you gave me to work with the Constitutional Convention. The experience is one which I shall always recall with pleasure, and especially the thank you from the Delegates themselves.

The most exciting part was the group of teenagers I worked with who served as Pages. In the entire four months we encountered no real problems. These teenagers should serve as an example as to what such a group can accomplish. They reflect nothing but honor on teenagers in general. There ought to be some way for the general public to be informed about this group and the job they performed. I plan to write each Page a personal note thanking him or her for the spectacular job that was done.

Very truly yours

/s/

Chief of Pages

Hon. H. Vernon Eney
President
Constitutional Convention of Maryland
State House
Annapolis, Maryland

Dear Mr. Eney:

I thank you personally, and on behalf of the entire Pennsylvania Constitutional Convention, for the expression of good wishes contained in your letter of last December 4th.

Also, I have enclosed a copy of the resolution adopted by the Pennsylvania Constitutional Convention that officially expresses its appreciation for the good wishes from Maryland, and wishing the Maryland Convention continued success.

Sincerely yours,

/s/
Lt. Gov. Raymond J. Broderick
President

In the Constitutional Convention

December 11, 1967

The 1967-68 Pennsylvania Constitutional Convention, although just beginning its efforts towards revising certain provisions of the Pennsylvania Constitution, has viewed with admiration the labor and dedication of the Maryland Constitutional Convention, which has been in session since September 12, 1967, and which will conclude its work by January 12, 1968.

The Pennsylvania Constitutional Convention is most appreciative of the best wishes received from the Maryland Constitutional Convention in the form of a Resolution on December 7, 1967; therefore be it

RESOLVED, That the Pennsylvania Constitutional Convention hereby sets forth its appreciation for the expression of good will from the Maryland Constitutional Convention; and be it further

RESOLVED, That the Pennsylvania Constitutional Convention wishes the Maryland Constitutional Convention continued success and Godspeed in the remaining days of its most eventful session; and be it further

RESOLVED, That a copy of this Resolution be transmitted to the President of the Maryland Constitutional Convention.

I hereby certify that the foregoing is an exact copy of a Resolution introduced in the Pennsylvania Constitutional Convention by William F. Clinger, Jr., and adopted by the Pennsylvania Constitutional Convention the 11th day of December 1967.

The Honorable H. Vernon Eney, President
Maryland Constitutional Convention
State House
Annapolis, Maryland

Dear President Eney:

My unavoidable absence from the Convention at the time the final vote was taken upon the adoption of the new Constitution prevented me from casting my vote in favor of this historic document.

Because I feel so strongly that we, as Delegates to this Convention, have forged an instrument which will place our State in the forefront of modern Constitutional State governments, I should like the record to show that, had I been present, my final vote would have been in favor of its adoption. It would be appreciated, therefore, if you would see that the Journal of the Convention proceedings reflects my position.

Respectfully yours,

/s/

J. Millard Tawes

Mr. H. Vernon Eney, President
State of Maryland Constitutional Convention
Annapolis, Maryland

Dear Mr. Eney:

This past September, I made commitments for several all-day meetings in New York City in January, believing that our new Constitution would be completed by that date. Unfortunately the third reader was approved on one of these dates and I was not present to vote.

Feeling so strongly that this proposed new Maryland Constitution will be one of the great constitutions written by any of the fifty states during the Twentieth Century, I am anxious that the records show that had I been here for the third reader, I would have voted in the affirmative.

Therefore, I would appreciate it greatly if this letter could be a part of the record.

Very truly yours,

C. Meredith Boyce

Delegates Storm, Bushong, E. C. Murray, Dukes, Dabrowski, and Groh, each took the floor and announced their regret at not being present when the final vote was taken on the proposed new Constitution and stated that had they been present they would have voted for the new Constitution.

MOTIONS AND RESOLUTIONS

Pursuant to the provisions of Convention Rule 76, President Eney announced that the following absences of delegates on January 10, 1968 were excused:

DELEGATE	EXCUSE
Jett	Illness
Miller, E.T.	Illness

The President's memorandum of absences excused pursuant to Convention Rule 76 (formerly Convention Rule 70C) dated October 19, 1967 indicated that the absence of Delegate Case on October 5, 1967 was excused because of Rosh Hashana. This was in error. Delegate Case's absence on that day was not excused.

Pursuant to the provisions of Convention Rule 76, President Eney announced that excused absences of delegates during the pay period beginning December 27, 1967 and ending January 9, 1968 were as follows:

DELEGATE	DATE	EXCUSE
Bard	12/30, 1/3	Illness
Bushong	12/27, 28, 29, 30, 1/3, 4, 5, 6, 8	Illness

Case	12/27, 28	Illness
Chabot	12/28, 29, 30	Illness
Cleveland	12/27, 28, 29, 30	Illness
Dukes	1/8	Funeral of near relative

Fox	1/4	Illness
Freedlander	1/5	Illness
Gleason	12/29, 30	Illness
Gullett	1/5	Illness
Hutchinson	12/27	Illness
Kahl	1/4	Illness
Macdonald	12/29, 30	Marriage of daughter
Malkus	1/4, 5, 6, 8	Death in immediate family
Miller, E. T.	12/27, 28, 29, 30, 1/3, 5, 6, 8	Illness
Mitchell	1/8	Delay in air trans- portation
Murray, E.	1/8	Illness
Scanlan	12/28	Illness in immediate family
Storm	1/8	Illness in immediate family
Sybert	12/28, 29, 30	Illness
Wagandt	12/29, 30	Illness
Willis	12/28	Illness

Resolution No. 55—

By Delegate Scanlan, concerning the Journal of the Convention.

Which was read and adopted by voice vote.

REMARKS BY THE PRESIDENT

FROM THE CHAIR

JANUARY 10, 1968

This is a historic moment for Marylanders for today we adopt a new constitution—the first in one hundred years. It is fitting that we pause for a moment to reflect on what we have accomplished. Four months ago when we began our task, we undertook to provide for the citizens of Maryland a form of government that would have the capacity to solve the problems forced upon us with increasing intensity by the rapidly accelerating increase in our population—an increase which threatens to engulf us with its unprecedented demands for governmental services. Have we achieved our goal—have we reached our objective?

I think we have.

We have not attempted to legislate—we have not attempted to solve all the problems of the present nor those of either the immediate or the distant future. However, we have, I believe, provided a structure of government for our State which can solve these problems and at the same time we have stated in simple—but, nevertheless, very precise terms—those fundamental rights of our citizens which shall forever be free from governmental control or restriction. In doing so, I believe we have also avoided the pitfalls which have beset recent attempts at constitutional revision in some of our sister states.

We have not drafted a constitution for labor or for big business, for one religious group or another, for civil libertarians or stand-patters, for liberals or conservatives, for one political party or another, or indeed for any one group of citizens. Instead, we have drafted a constitution for the citizens of Maryland—all of them—rich and poor, black and white, young and old. In so doing, we have drafted a constitution which, I am confident, will be ratified overwhelmingly by the people of Maryland on May 14, 1968. And this may be regarded as what Delegate Beachley—very aptly, I think—describes as the Annapolis Achievement.

This result did not just happen. It occurred because 142 very dedicated and hardworking men and women were determined that it should happen. High hopes were expressed for this Convention when it convened in September, 1967, but I daresay there was no one who would have prophesied then that after four months of unremitting toil and debate—much of which could have been so divisive as to cause scars which would never have healed—this Convention would have been able to draft a constitution approved by the nearly unanimous vote of all the delegates. This bodes well for the acceptance of the constitution by the people of Maryland and may be regarded also, I think, as a part of the Annapolis Achievement.

The delegates to this Convention come from every section of the State, from every walk of life, from every social strata and many different occupations; they have different points of view, different philosophies of government, different philosophies of life, different religious beliefs, different educational backgrounds. In four months of day-to-day work on a common objective, they have learned much of the other fellow's point of view and have developed respect for it without losing their own point of view. They have talked, but also listened, and debated intensely, both in committee and on the floor of the Convention. All of this has not only resulted in the establishment of warm friendships, but in a clearer understanding on the part of all of them of the problems, the desires, the interests of the people in different areas of the State. This is a tremendously cohesive force for the benefit of the whole State. It too is a part of the Annapolis Achievement.

Last July this Convention honored me by selecting me as its President. I have, since then, endeavored to perform the duties of that high office to the very best of my ability. Any success that I have been able to achieve has been due in no small part to the greatest degree of cooperation from each and every delegate that the president of any assembly ever had. It is the sincerest compliment that could be paid to me and it is the one I cherish most. From the bottom of my heart, I thank you, each and every one.

CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION OF MARYLAND
ADDRESS BY DELEGATE J. MILLARD TAWES
JANUARY 10, 1968

Mr. President, Fellow Delegates to the 1967-1968 Constitutional Convention of the State of Maryland:

We are approaching the closing moments of this historic convention, and before we reach the hour of adjournment sine die I respectfully request your indulgence for a few minutes, as I would like to leave a few thoughts with you before we depart for our respective homes later today.

The signing today of this Constitution signals the end of four months of careful thought and deliberation by 142 men and women representing the people of Maryland. As the Convention closes and the Constitution is signed, the State of Maryland moves closer to its goal of a more effective and responsible government to serve her citizens.

Today's ceremony, however, represents more than the culmination of this Convention's work. The signing of this document is the most significant step yet made in a series of steps toward a new Constitution for Maryland. I am pleased indeed that as Governor of this State, in June of 1965, I had the foresight to appoint a non-partisan study commission whose duty it was, as stated, "to conduct an inquiry into the necessity for, and extent and nature of, any amendment, modification or revision of the Constitution of Maryland, with particular respect to whether a Constitutional Convention should be held, the procedures for calling such a Convention, the basis for representation at the Convention and the procedures for the election of delegates thereto."

As I have previously said, I am pleased to have played a part in the establishment of the Commission, and may I add that I consider the acceptance of the Chairmanship of that Commission by the distinguished Baltimore lawyer, Mr. H. Vernon Eney, to have been the greatest of good fortunes.

The Commission which he headed was non-partisan and represented the varying shades of interests in our State. Its final report speaks for itself, and I need not elaborate further on it here; but I do want to say that we were indeed fortunate that eleven of the members of the original study Commission were elected delegates to this Convention, including our President.

The opportunity to work with Mr. Eney during the past few years has been a most rewarding and refreshing experience and one I shall always remember.

We all regret, I know, that former Governor William Preston Lane, the Honorary Chairman of the Commission, did not live to see the final product of its labors. Governor Lane was a loyal and faithful member of the Commission and contributed greatly to its deliberations.

We are grateful also to Governor Agnew and to the Maryland General Assembly for the support and the encouragement they have given this Convention.

In addition to the satisfaction of watching the progress toward the calling of this Convention and the privilege of assisting with the steps that led here, I have had the honor to participate in the framing of this new Constitution as a delegate. I have seen the dedication, the determination and the wisdom which the delegates have applied to the task. I have been conscious of the wide breadth of experience and the depth of knowledge that these men and women, representing a cross-section of Maryland's citizenry, have contributed to this assembly. I have witnessed and engaged in the long hours of study and debate devoted to the drafting of this document.

Needless to say, I owe a debt of undying gratitude to all of you for naming me Honorary President of this body; and let me hasten to say here that at no time during the period of planning for this Convention did the slightest thought occur to me to permit my name to be filed as a candidate from my County of Somerset. Suffice it to say that I am greatly pleased and honored that it did happen as I have enjoyed immensely the fellowship of this delightful group of ladies and gentlemen. It has been a great privilege.

When I came here last September, I decided that I would not take the floor at any time on any subject. I assure you, however, that this in no way reflected a lack of interest in the many provocative, challenging and stimulating proposals we have faced during these sessions. On the contrary, my interest in every proposal has been deep and abiding, and let me say that I have been sorely tempted from time to time to enter into the discussions, particularly on occasions when the outlook on some proposals which I considered to be of special importance appeared to be in deep trouble. But in the end, I stuck by my original plan feeling, as I did, that my role in creating this Convention and my activity here might in some way be interpreted as being in conflict.

I would suppose that I have probably spent more time in the political arena than anyone else here—more than 36 years. I can think of no greater good fortune, as I reach these twilight years of my life, than to have been able to come here, as I have, and climax this career in public life in an endeavor such as this in which we have attempted to forge a basic law that will serve Marylanders of this generation and of many, many generations to come.

While we could not possibly satisfy all Marylanders in every respect with a single document, we have produced a sound Constitution which will satisfy a majority of Marylanders on most points. The document was carefully conceived and required hours of patient deliberation. It is a blend of the variety of viewpoints and experiences represented at this Convention. I feel confident as I express my wholehearted approval for this Constitution with my signature, that a vast majority of Maryland citizens this May 14 will likewise approve this document with their votes.

It is fitting that the drafting and signing of this new State charter should take place in Maryland's historic State House. Over 180 years ago the old Senate Chamber witnessed the signing of another historic document, the Peace of Paris, which ended the Revolution and gave the thirteen colonies their independence. A few years later from this State House the Annapolis Convention issued the call to the states which led to the framing of the United States Constitution.

Maryland was a leader in the formation of the government of the United States. In keeping with this tradition of leadership, Maryland today is in the forefront of a movement to improve our state governments by rewriting the antiquated constitutions which are hampering the ability of our states to tackle effectively the problems of this century. Many states are watching us closely for encouragement in their own efforts to redraft their inadequate state charters.

Within a few hours our work here will be completed, and for my part I am persuaded that we have produced a good, sound, reasonable basic law for the people of Maryland. Ah yes, I have had some doubts about parts, as I suspect most—if not all—of you have.

But when I am assailed by these doubts, as I have been a few times, I am reminded of a moving and dramatic event that occurred in the early years of our Republic.

It was in Philadelphia in 1787, and a little band of statesmen had just completed, much as we have now, a final draft of a document—a document that later was to be hailed as one of the greatest ever forged by human beings, our own Federal Constitution.

But at that time, on September 17, 1787, there were grave misgivings and serious doubts among the group. And of those who entertained some doubts was one Benjamin Franklin, then 81, with a career already behind him that had not been, and still has not been, excelled in the history of our Nation.

The venerable Doctor Franklin confessed there were parts of the document he did not approve, but then he went on to say (and I should like to quote at some length).

"... But I am not sure," he said, "I shall never approve them. For having lived long, I have experienced many instances of being obliged by better information or fuller consideration, to change opinions, even on important subjects, which I once thought right but found to be otherwise.

"In these sentiments, Sir (I am still quoting) I agree to this Constitution with all its faults, if they are such, because I think a general government necessary for us. I doubt, too, whether any other convention we can obtain may be able to make a better Constitution. For when you assemble a number of men, to have the advantage of their joint wisdom, you inevitably assemble with those men all their prejudices, their passions, their errors of opinion, their local interests, and their selfish views. From such an assembly can a perfect production be expected? It therefore astonishes me, Sir, to find this system approaching so near to perfection as it does . . . Thus, I consent to this Constitution, Sir, because I expect no better, and because I am not sure that it is not the best.

"On the whole, Sir, (I am still quoting) I cannot help expressing a wish that every member of the Convention who may still have objections to it, would, with me on this occasion, doubt a little of his own infallibility—and to make manifest our unanimity, put his name to this instrument."

When one's memory spans as many decades as did Doctor Franklin's—and as does mine—it is a little hard to maintain a stance of infallibility, of perfect rectitude, of certain righteousness. One at that stage has too many recollections of views once held to be unassailable which later proved to be in error, of thoughts once held sacred which proved ultimately to be unsound.

And so, echoing the sentiment of that most distinguished of Americans, I accept and endorse this Constitution, with its faults, if it has them. As did Franklin in 1787, I consent to this Constitution because I doubt if we can expect any better, and as he, I am not so sure that it is not indeed the best.

I must conclude these remarks, but before I do I would avail myself of expressing once again my deep and undying gratitude to President Eney, to Vice Presidents Clark and James, to all members of the staff, to the reporters, to the wonderful group of pages, to all of you who have served with me as delegates to this Convention.

Finally, may I, still voicing the sentiment of the noble Franklin, express a wish that those of you here who may still have objections to this Constitution join with me in doubting a little of our infallibility and manifest our unanimity of purpose by putting our names to this instrument.

I urge you, as companions and fellow workers, to join with me in making an appeal to the citizens of this State to support this new Constitution, in the sure knowledge that in it are the instruments to correct any flaws that may be found. We may not rest on our oars until this, the final act in our purpose, is accomplished.

And may the Omniscient Father of us all favor that which we have done.

REMARKS BY FIRST VICE-PRESIDENT JAMES CLARK

Mr. President, Ladies and Gentlemen, we, as a convention, have made many decisions. However, none of these decisions was as important as the one made on that hot July day—the decision to make H. Vernon Eney president of this Convention.

Since that day, he has given totally of his energies and abilities. His leadership has been the finest kind—leadership by example. By his patience and perseverance, he has brought us to this memorable day in Maryland's history.

The stiffness and formality that characterized this Convention in its early days has given way to an air of easy informality, of camaraderie, and cooperation. The genius of this body has been its ability, not only to make the right decision when the chips were down, but also to accept these decisions, without bitterness, once they were made. This spirit has permeated the document which we have produced and will, I believe, flow out to the people of Maryland and have a great deal to do with their acceptance of this Constitution.

Those who would defeat this fine document on May 14 dwell primarily on its probable cost. This, to me, is a faulty argument. It could well be that the proper execution of the reorganization of the Executive Branch, as called for, would result in considerable savings for the taxpayers. The revamping of our court system, especially at the District Court level, may in the long run be far less costly than the continuation of our present inadequate system.

And finally, under this Constitution, the legislature will be in a stronger position than ever before to examine the budget thoroughly and effect savings for the people of Maryland.

And, now, may I wish each of you—and this worthy document—Godspeed.

REMARKS BY SECOND VICE-PRESIDENT WILLIAM S. JAMES

Mr. President, Fellow Delegates, Assembled Citizens and Guests—

Ideally, a Constitutional Convention is a gathering of citizens for the purpose of conducting a public discussion and adopting the best in constitutional thought. All participants in the calling and the conduct of this historic convention have been inspired by an idealism, which often pervades, but is overlooked in our public life. Governor Tawes, in organizing the Constitutional Convention Commission, the Commission in carrying out its duties with impartiality and purpose, the General Assembly of Maryland in creating the formalities under which the Convention was organized, the voters of Maryland by their election of a non-partisan group of delegates, and you, my fellow delegates, by the discharge of your trust with the creative statesmanship, with the leadership of our great President H. Vernon Eney, have been animated by noble purpose. These efforts have produced a document of hope and progress, both for Marylanders and our fellow Americans in other States.

Permit me to express my appreciation for the honor of participating with you in the discharge of this historic trust.

REMARKS BY DELEGATE E. DALE ADKINS, JR.

As we meet in the closing hours of this great convention we would be less than human if we did not feel to some degree the weight of history pressing upon us.

For many months as our predecessors a hundred years ago, so here we for many months joined in intense, intelligent and articulate debate the end product of which we now proudly present to the people of Maryland.

Hopefully Mr. President, we have written for the ages—with certainty, we have written wisely for the moment.

The Charter we present to the people of Maryland bears the imprint of no single group—neither conservative nor liberal, Republican nor Democrat, neither white nor black. It represents the finest reconciliation of strongly held views that this convention could produce and the near-unanimous vote which it has received testifies to the patience, the good will and the selflessness with which this convention under your inspired leadership has conducted its business.

However satisfied we are, the final test is yet to come. Have we discharged our obligation in a manner pleasing to the voters of Maryland?

There will be opposition. Some will oppose for selfish reasons, some for reasons of misunderstanding, some because of basic disagreements of philosophy.

Hard though our work has been, our real responsibility now begins. We are peculiarly equipped to explain to Marylanders the basis of this document and this we must do.

Many Marylanders believe with Winston Churchill—that tradition is the fly-wheel of democracy and so it is. But we can, if we will convince them that tradition has not been violated where it deserves respect but has been discarded only where it is a millstone to progress.

Facts and logic in support of this document, when presented as we have had them presented will prove compelling to the voters as they have to us.

Let us now, and each of us, turn our attention to the ratification of this great charter.

To do less would violate our duty to ourselves and to the people of Maryland. We can do no more.

REMARKS OF DELEGATE C. WILLIAM GILCHRIST

Four months ago we came into this chamber, from a variety of stations of life, with varying philosophies, but with a unanimous thought in mind—that all of us would do that which was within our power to write the best Constitution we could devise for Maryland.

Today we are signing a document—a GOOD document. It is not an ideal Constitution, for one simple reason. There is no such thing as an ideal Constitution, for they are written by human beings, with human frailties. They are written by groups, so they must necessarily be group thinking and cannot represent all the ideas of a single man. Each of us can find in this Constitution something which he would wish were not there.

Far more important, each of us finds in this document much that we believe to be very good, much that will be of great benefit for our state and its people. On that good we must stake our hopes.

There have been sharp differences on this floor—yet we have been able to resolve those differences and find in this document that which is acceptable to us, that which we can recommend wholeheartedly to the people of Maryland.

As delegates we have learned to know Maryland's problems—we have had months of intensive study. As we have been given this knowledge, we have been given a duty—to spread that knowledge and the faith we have developed in this Constitution.

We have one more thing to do to justify the honor which has been done us. We must convince the people of Maryland that we have done our best—and that we have done it for all of them. We have many miles to go before we rest.

REMARKS BY DELEGATE JUANITA JACKSON MITCHELL

This is a great day. But it is not a day of triumph. Rather it is a day of rededication to the enduring principles on which our nation was founded.

For 100 years ago, in this same state house, a Constitution was adopted which precluded the people of this State who were members of the Negro race from voting.

But today we have adopted a Constitution which expressly prohibits discrimination by the State on account of race, color, religion or national origin.

Further, this Constitution is vital proof that in a democracy, free men and women of purpose and goodwill, in the perilous and challenging times in which we find ourselves, can act with courage, speed, and wisdom in meeting the needs of the people of this State who are determined to live under a system of just laws.

We have forged here a document which is more than a statement of fundamental law. It is a symbol of our unity and our allegiance to the highest American political traditions of equality and justice and it presents an improved structure of the political system of our State which is essential to preserve liberty.

Importantly, we have provided for the maximum participation of the people in their governing and for keeping the government close to the people. We have faced the necessity to make the law so clear that even the most humble will understand that it is designed to be their protector and not their oppressor.

In a diverse group of citizens which included a cross section of the population of the State, there arose questions on which the delegates differed, and some proposals were included or excluded to the disappointment of their advocates who believed them vital and important. Nevertheless, out of the careful study by each delegate, the unfettered and fair debate by all who wished to be heard, we have forged a new Constitution that has commanded the support of the overwhelming majority of the delegates.

The majority has spoken. In our nation that is the will of the people. In this document there is to be found the common ground on which all of us, the weak and the strong, the poor and the rich, the black and the white, the believer and the non-believer, can march forward together in progress in this State, towards our ideals of life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness.

As we sign this document, we are confident that we have given our State an instrument of governance wherein the writers have not only been mindful of the needs of our times, but have kept their eyes on the future of the children of this State, and our children's children.

The drafting is only half of the job. We pledge here our best efforts to the education of the people of the State as to what we have done here.

We are confident that on May 14th when this Constitution becomes the law of Maryland, we will have given our State a shield for the defense of sacred rights and a sword to strike down the encroachments of tyranny.

But more than this, our State will set an inspiring example for all of its sisters in the Union.

America, America, God shed His grace on thee
And Crown thy good with brotherhood
From sea to shining sea.

REMARKS BY DELEGATE CARLTON R. SICKLES

Mr. President:

When I come up to sign, my head will swim with memories of this Convention—of my own impatience and of your persistence; of quorum calls and calls from home; of camera clicks and microphone squeals; of whispers from the walls; and shouts in this hall.

And I shall walk with pride, because we have done well.

Each generation makes some contribution to its country, and this generation in Maryland will list as one of its major accomplishments this Constitution and its fruits.

This accomplishment is no accident. Each delegate contributed freely of his talents—some by experience, some by enthusiasm, some by words, and yes, some by silence.

We were tempted to be political, but we were not. We were urged to be parochial, but we were not. We were sought to protect special interests, but we did not. While constantly reminded of a yesterday that never really was, we dreamt of a tomorrow that just must be.

While this is an end, it is but another chapter in the saga of the Constitution of 1968, not concluded until the ratification in May, and this last step may well be our most important one.

Let all our people know that the word will come forth from this moment on: that a new government has been formed to fill their wants and needs, created not in fear of them but with concern for their welfare.

SPECIAL PRESENTATIONS

At 1:25 o'clock p.m., Honorary President Tawes assumed the chair as presiding officer of the Convention.

Honorary President Tawes requested Delegate E. J. Clarke, Chairman of the Committee on Special Presentations, to join him at the rostrum for the purpose of assisting him with the presentations.

First Vice-President Clark and Second Vice-President James were requested and did escort Mrs. Eney to the rostrum. Delegate Key presented Mrs. Eney on behalf of the Convention Delegates a bouquet of yellow roses. Mrs. Eney accepted and made a short statement of appreciation.

Delegate Beachley and Delegate Ulrich escorted Mr. Eney to the rostrum at which point Delegates Bryson and Raley escorted the Sergeant-at-Arms to the rostrum who carried the duplicate original mace. Delegate E. J. Clarke presented the duplicate original mace, with the following remarks:

Honorary President Tawes. First Vice President Clark, Second Vice President James, Ladies and Gentlemen of the Convention, Honored guests and friends—

The opportunity that has been afforded me to make this presentation as a part of the final session of the Annapolis Achievement is truly the greatest honor of my lifetime. Mr.

President, we present to you this mace and ask that you accept it with the knowledge that Marylanders are deeply grateful to you, and please accept our best wishes at this time. And may God be with you always.

The President responded briefly.

The base of the mace is encircled by a silver band which is inscribed as follows:

"Presented to H. Vernon Eney, President of the Constitutional Convention of Maryland of 1967 by the Delegates and Officers of the Convention with respect and affection.

Delegates
Officers
Chief of Pages"

Please accept this mace with the knowledge that today all of Maryland is grateful.

Delegate E. J. Clarke moved, duly seconded, to suspend the rules so that Resolution No. 62 could be introduced and considered.

Said motion prevailed by yeas and nays as follows:

Penniman, Style, Drafting and Arrangement Committee, William B. Dulaney, Public Information Committee.

Delegate Finch provided the gavels that were presented.

SIGNING OF THE ADOPTED CONSTITUTION BY DELEGATES

At 2:00 o'clock p.m., H. Vernon Eney, President of the Convention, and Robert J. Martineau, Secretary to the Convention, certified the Constitution adopted by the Convention, by affixing their signatures thereto.

For the certification and signing of the Constitution, the historic desk formerly used by the President of the Senate was brought to the Convention Chamber from the old Senate Chamber. This desk came to the State House in 1797, and was made by one John Shaw.

The officers of the convention, Honorary President Tawes, President Eney, and Second Vice President James, signed the Constitution. First Vice President James Clark was unable to sign today because of a broken right hand. He signed the Constitution at a later time after the cast had been removed.

President Eney returned to the rostrum and resumed the Chair after signing the Constitution.

After the officers had signed, Delegate Winslow, as the eldest delegate to the Convention, and Delegate Hutchinson, as the youngest delegate, signed the Constitution.

Because of emergencies in their respective families, Delegates Storm and Malkus next signed the Constitution, outside of the usual rotation.

Upon the calling of their names by the reading clerk, the following Delegates to the Convention came to the well of the Chamber one at a time, and signed the Constitution in this order:

Abramson, Adkins, Anderson, Armor, Bamberger, Bard, Barrick, Baumann, Beachley, Beall, Bennett, Blair, Boileau, Borom, Bothe, Boyce, Boyer, Boyles, Bradshaw, Bryson, Burdette, Burgess, Bushong, Buzzell, Byrnes, Caldwell, Cardin, Carson, Case, Chabot, Child, Cicone, Clagett, Clarke E. J., Cleveland, Dabrowski, Darby, Della, Dorsey, Dukes, Dulany, Eckenrode, Finch, Fornos, Fox, Frederick, Freedlander, Gallagher, Gilchrist, Gill, Gleason, Grant, Groh, Grumbacher, Gullett, Hanson, Hardwicke, Hargrove, Harkness, Harris, Henderson, Hickman, Hopkins, Hostetter, Johnson, Kahl, Key, Kiefer, Kirkland, Koger, Kosakowski, Koss, Leitzel, Linton, Lord, Macdonald, Marion, Mason, Maurer, Mentzer, Miller B., Mitchell, Morgan, Moser, Mosner, Mudd, Murphy, Murray D.S., Murray E.C., Needle, Neilson, Neumann, Pascal, Penniman, Peters, Powers, Price, Pullen, Raley, Ritter, Robey F.C., Robie K.L., Rollins, Rosenstock, Rush, Rybczynski, Scanlan, Schloeder, Schneider, Sherbow, Siewierski, Singer, Smith A.W., Smith J.H., Smith M.H., Sollins, Sosnowski, Soul, Stern, Sybert, Taylor H.E., Taylor L., Ulrich, Vecera, Wagandt, Webb, Weidemeyer, Wheatley, White, Willis, Willoner.

Delegates Jett and E.T. Miller could not attend today's session of the Convention because of illness, and therefore did not sign the proposed Constitution at today's session. Delegate Jett signed the Constitution at a later date. Delegate E.T. Miller's death intervened before he could sign the proposed Constitution.

ADJOURNMENT

At 3:33 o'clock p.m. Delegate Powers moved, duly seconded, that the Convention adjourn sine die.

Said motion prevailed by yeas and nays as follows:

PREFATORY STATEMENT TO APPENDICES A AND B

Under Convention Rule 57, "any suggestion, proposition or draft intended to become a part of any revised Constitution, or amendment thereto, or schedule to be attached thereto, shall be called a delegate proposal or a committee recommendation." Under Convention Rule 58, all delegate proposals after introduction and first reading by title were referred to a committee, which after consideration submitted its reports in the form of committee recommendations. After presentation and first reading by title all committee recommendations were referred to the Committee of the Whole. After consideration by the Committee of the Whole, its report with respect to the committee recommendation and any amendments thereto was referred to the Committee on Style, Drafting and Arrangement. Thereafter, the report of the Committee on Style, Drafting and Arrangement with respect to the committee recommendation was considered by the Convention and this constituted the second reading. After the second reading, the committee recommendation, together with any amendments thereto which had been adopted on second reading, was again referred to the Committee on Style, Drafting and Arrangement for incorporation in the final draft of a revised Constitution. The final report of the Committee on Style, Drafting and Arrangement was then considered by the Convention and this constituted third reading and final passage of the revised Constitution.

Appendix A is an index to the sessions of the Convention and includes references to the reports of the Committee on Style, Drafting and Arrangement. The first such report, No. S&D-1, is a general report as to drafting style guidelines. The next sixteen reports, Nos. S&D-2 to S&D-17, inclusive, are reports with respect to committee recommendations and their consideration by the Convention constitutes the second reading of proposals for inclusion in the revised Constitution. The last report, No. S&D-18, is the final report of the Committee on Style, Drafting and Arrangement and its consideration by the Convention constitutes the third reading of the proposed revised Constitution.

Appendix B is an index to the consideration by the Committee of the Whole of the committee recommendations of the various committees.
